Hatred Reaps Its Harvest

On a dark, cloudy night, symbolic of the callous, hate-filled minds involved, a Negro school in Atlanta senselessly was bombed early Monday morning. It is too bad the nation could not see the wrecked rooms where the colored Christmas drawings of children, lovingly done, were scattered in such pitiful disorder. These childish doings cry out accusingly with a mute but trumpet-like eloquence.

The big brave men who tossed the explosive in the darkness of the night, and in the deeper darkness of their own minds and souls, have not stopped the processes of education. Their kind, have appeared often in history. They were among those who cried, "Crucify Him." Their kind were among those who offered Him vinegar on the cross when He said, "I thirst." Their soul-kind were among those who tended Hitler's gas furnaces. Their kind are among the Communist terror groups. Their kind are related to those who scream filth in the New Orleans demonstrations.

In a time like this, it is fashionable for leaders of those who preach, teach and organize for defiance of law and court decisions to deplore violence and say, "We are not responsible. We do not endorse violence."

But, of course, they do.

In High Places

Men and women in high places who organize groups to resist court orders, those who urge pledges of never surrendering, and who encourage those of the Klan mentality, did not lose the explosive at the school. But in a very real sense, their hands were there just the same, because, if those who are willing to commit bombings, physical assaults and other crimes of violence were not encouraged by those in established positions who curse the court, who say that American judges are Communists, who reveal their own state of mind to be that of law violators, the lawless would not become so emboldened.

But, as always, when the fruits of their planting are harvested, they recoil and say, "We deplore this. We never meant such things to happen."

And there are always those who try to suggest that perhaps it was done "by the others," by those who want to bring discredit on organizations publicly preaching defiance of law and no surrender to the orders of the government of the United States.

There are always excuses for not doing what is right, for not obeying law and the processes of courts.

So, once again, as in the bombing of the Atlanta Temple—and of schools and churches in other cities—we have a harvest of things sown. It was but a few days ago an Atlanta Klan leader publicly advocated destroying schools.

Leadership Tested

Once again Southern leadership is put to the test.

Here again we have the essence of the Greek tragedy. In the end, the decent, civilized people will prevail. In the end there will be education for all children. Bombers prove nothing by bombing, or destroying a school or church. God still lives. Learning remains.

The tragedy is that even though the end of the play is known, there must be needless suffering, violence and ugly lawlessness on the loose.

It isn't always easy to be an American. There are times when we must surrender our own personal wishes, emotions, and preferences for the common good. We have had waves of prejudice move across our country at different periods in its history. They have all broken against the common sense and decency of the American who knows that his country must offer the same great asset to all of its citizens—freedom, liberty, dignity and opportunity. This must be within the reach of all citizens.

The childish drawings of Christmas—of Peace on Earth to Men of Good Will—on the floors of the bombed classrooms have a message for all whose hearts are not ruled by darkness and evil.

Guns, Gas Quell Riot By Moslems

Troops Chase Natives to Casbah

ALGIERS (AP)—Moslems defiantly waving the flag of nationalist rebellion rioted again Monday in Algiers but finally were penned up in their teeming quarters by French soldiers and riot police. The death toll from four days of disorder rose to 90.

The mobs vented their fury on Jews in the native quarter, sacking Jewish stores and looting a house of worship on the edge of the quarter. Police dispersed them with tear gas grenades. An army helicopter fired on a rebel flag hoisted above the building.

Hundreds of Jews fled the native quarter at this abrupt manifestation of the ancient hostility between Moslem and Jew.

President Charles de Gaulle abruptly cut short by a day his planned six-day visit to Algeria to sell his plan of home rule for the rebellious territory. He will head back to Paris Tuesday.

De Gaulle has remained in the back country, far from the rioting in the cities, which started with his arrival on Friday. He apparently decided he can deal more effectively with the crisis from the seat of government.

His hopes of solving the six-year-old rebellion in Algeria through self-determination was jolted earlier in the day by Ferhat Abbas, premier of the rebel government in exile. He rejected De Gaulle's program as "an empty slogan."

In a statement issued in Tunis, Abbas said his regime will accept the verdict of a referendum held

WORK OF TINY HANDS FALLS

Their Yule Scene Torn Up by Blast

By BRUCE GALPHIN

The classrooms at English Avenue Elementary School look like the ones you attended or the ones where you send your own children five mornings a week.

Except for the chaotically twisted slats of the venetian blinds . . .

And the unbelievably tattered roller shades . . . And the tens of thousands of window pane fragments, fashioned in a roaring instant into showers of darts. The slivers blanketed the eight little tables and 39 tiny chairs in the first grade classroom, a cruel parody on a Christmas snow scene.

CRUNCH UNDERFOOT

They crunched underfoot beneath a poster of reindeer pulling a sleigh, and the child-like crayon drawings of red-jacketed Santas.

They lay in the chalk tray of the blackboard with the sign: "Christmas. Santa Claus comes on Christmas Day. Merry Christmas."

Curiously, all but eight tiny blocks of an elaborately built structure withstood the shock wave.

In the first-grade cloakroom, a child's jacket, forgotten in Friday's milder weather, hung amid the litter of glass and blast-whipped paper.

"MERRY CHRISTMAS"

The 41 desks on the second-floor third-grade classroom are a little larger, but disarray was the same.

The children had made a Christmas tree for the bulletin board out of rings of colored construction paper. A block-letter message read: "We wish you a merry Christmas and a happy New Year."

The force of the blast knocked over a stand listing numbers and letters of the alphabet, which fell at the foot of a list of good conduct rules.

"BE FRIENDLY"

On a bulletin board which bore a color photograph of President-elect Kennedy and Vice President Nixon, a savings bond poster and the membership roll of the Junior Red Cross, a sign admonished "Be friendly, not rude."

The children who attended classes in the two rooms—at least those who showed up in Monday's confusion and fear—were moved elsewhere in the school.

So were the six classes which studied by television in the school auditorium, where the blast also spewed deadly fingers of glass.

If the auditorium is repaired in time, Principal B. S. Burch of the 1,600-pupil school said, the annual PTA Christmas program will be presented there next Thursday.

Blast at Negro School Sets Off 3-Way Probe, Shocks Officials Here

City, State Authorities Outraged

Official reaction to Monday's school bombing almost unanimously expressed shock at the "senselessness" of the deed.

Lt. Gov. Garland Byrd said the act seriously impaired the fight of those seeking to preserve segregation.

Atlanta School Supt. Dr. John Letson said he could think of nothing about the English Avenue Elementary School which would be a "provocation."

MAYOR BLAMES RABBLE

Mayor Hartsfield laid the blame on "ignorant rabble, inflamed by political demagogues and encouraged by the silence of most of our substantial civic leaders."

A. C. (Pete) Latimer, president of the Atlanta Board of Education, Monday night branded the bombing as the act of a "diseased mind."

Speaking at a board session, Latimer said:

"The lack of a long discussion about the unfortunate bombing is not to be taken as lack of interest on the part of this board."

ATLANTA SUFFERS BLOT

"We are aware that only a person with a diseased mind could commit such an atrocious act. We want the community and all thinking people to know there is nothing as pathetically defenseless as a school and that the bombing was a blot on Atlanta's fine reputation."

Dr. Rufus Clement, president of Atlanta University and the only Negro member of the Atlanta Board of Education, said, "I'm certain that all law-abiding citizens abhor this kind of conduct on the part of any citizen."

Reactions of shock and outrage also came from numerous legislators meeting in Athens.

Sen. Carl Sanders of Augusta, president pro tem of the State Senate, said bombings and other acts of violence will not solve the problems facing Georgia schools or "preserve the Southern way of life."

Sanders said he personally deplored any action that resulted in the destruction of any institution of learning, "particularly by individuals who apparently are unwilling to fight for what they believed in by lawful means."

Fulton Rep. M. M. (Muggsy) Smith said:

"I deplore the bombing, which

4 Arrested In Terminal Sit-in Here

Four Negro college students were arrested on charges of violating the Georgia anti-trespass law late Monday at a restaurant in Terminal Station, police said.

They were the first persons arrested under the anti-trespass law here since Oct. 19 when 39 persons, including integration leader Martin Luther King Jr., were booked in sit-in demonstrations at downtown lunch counters.

Those arrested Monday were identified as Ruby Doris Smith, 18, of 794 Fraser St., SE; Robert Felder, 22, of 9 McDonough Completion of the top State Department team was announced by Kennedy at his father's winter Oceanside home here. Rusk, who had arrived secretly from New York Sunday, stood beside him and participated in a joint news conference.

Rusk, a 51-year-old native of Cherokee County, Ga., currently serving as president of the Rockefeller Foundation in New York, has known Kennedy only since last Thursday. But the President-elect said he came highly recommended for his work at the Rockefeller Foundation and his

Detectives, FBI, Army Hunt Clues

By KEELER MCCARTNEY

A shattering explosion Monday damaged a Negro school and a dozen homes along Pelham Street, NW, and started an intensive, three-way investigation.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation entered the case on a cooperative basis along with a demolition team from the Third Army. Most of the Atlanta police detective force also was thrown into the investigation.

Dynamite sales more restricted nowadays. Story on Page 11.

Detectives were canvassing the neighborhood in the hope of picking up a clue and they were checking on the whereabouts of persons who have been under police surveillance in racial disputes.

The absence of a clear-cut motive hampered the police investigation. The English Avenue School at 627 English Ave., NW, was changed to an all-Negro elementary school in 1951 after the section had gradually changed from white to Negro.

"It was the work of a fanatic," declared Detective Capt. R. E. Little, head of a special subversive section in the Detective Bureau. "Of that we are sure."

Dr. John Letson, city school superintendent, estimated the repair bill for the damage would run between $1,000 and $1,500. He said the work should be completed in a few days.

The blast at 2:40 a.m. on a cold, windy morning heavily damaged the south side of the two-story

MAYORS DELIVER THOUSANDS OF GIFTS

Christmas Comes Early On Milledgeville's M-Day

MILLEDGEVILLE—Christmas began to come early to Milledgeville Monday as mayors and their wives delivered thousands of gifts to Milledgeville State Hospital.

Large cities and small towns from throughout Georgia had representatives on hand with Christmas gifts for the second annual "M-Day" sponsored by Mrs. Betty Vandiver, Georgia's first lady, and the Georgia Municipal Association.

Presenting the gifts, Mrs. Vandiver said, "This lovely array of gifts is truly the beginning of Christmas for me."

By BARBARA MILZ

She delivered to Dr. MacKinnon a communion service for the Chapel of All Faiths at the hospital. It is a gift from the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs.

Gov. Vandiver told the guests and some 1,500 patients in the state hospital auditorium:

"I want to thank you for the great gift you bring here today. I'm not referring to the material gifts—I'm referring to the fact that you are bringing here the hearts of your people."

Gov. Vandiver explained that in previous years about a fourth of the 12,000 patients at Milledgeville received not a single Christmas card from outside the hospital.

Dr. I. H. MacKinnon, hospital superintendent, thanked the mayors for their cars, station wagons and trucks filled with gifts. He said on behalf of the patients, "Each and every patient will have the feeling of having received from those of you who have given."

The guests were welcomed by Walter B. Williams Jr., mayor of

Winds to Slap An Extra Chill On Day in 30s

Brisk winds are predicted Tuesday, whetting a sharp edge on a biting 20-degree low here. It's the coldest weather so far this winter.

Fair skies will blanket Atlanta and brisk winds will again chill shoppers, the forecaster said, and the mercury isn't slated to rise higher than 42 Tuesday afternoon. More of the same is upcoming Wednesday: a 22 low and a 46 high being the extremes anticipated.

Flurries of snow skittered along on 35-mile-per-hour winds (with gusts up to 46 mph) in Atlanta Monday. Extremes recorded at the Atlanta Airport were 40 and 26.

Worst Fall Blizzard Rakes East Coast

20-Inch Snow Snarls Cities; Death Toll Nearing 100

A violent blizzard, the worst autumn snowstorm on record, swept the Eastern seaboard with cruel fury Monday. It shrouded the Washington to Boston in drifts measured by the foot, and all but immobilized them.

Already bitter temperatures plunged toward zero with passage of the storm. No immediate relief was in sight.

Up to 20 inches of snow hit some sections. It shifted, rose and fell before howling gale winds like a turbulent sea.

NEARLY 100 DIE

The death toll stood near 100 for the period since late last week, when one arm of the storm pounded the West. The storm then moved eastward to link up with another severe disturbance from the South, and spend itself on the coast with doubled strength.

New York's evening rush hour, even with the storm past, escaped utter pandemonium only because so many commuters were snow-bound all day in their homes. Train schedules were torn up.

ROADS CLOGGED

The huge Port Authority Bus Terminal, normally humming with 3,000 arriving and departing buses a day, was quiet as a hamlet depot, with only an occasional bus moving. Many roads in New Jersey were clogged. A line of stalled cars and trucks more than four miles long blocked north-bound lanes of the Jersey Turnpike at one point.

At Mystic, Conn., 10 stores and business houses were destroyed in a fire that raged out of control for three hours in the midst of the storm. Damage unofficially was estimated at $1 million or more.

President Eisenhower, delaying a trip north from Augusta, Ga., until Monday because of the weather, stepped from his plane in Washington and exclaimed in surprise: "Wowee!"

Business came to a virtual standstill in many cities.

Many highways were impassable in the coastal East. An estimated number of motorists were marooned on the Maine Turnpike.

TRAFFIC TIED UP

Private auto traffic came to a halt, with even police cars stranded by the drifts. Cars were abandoned to the storm on snow-piled city streets, white and unbroken as a country lane.

In Washington, a man skied to work along normally-bustling Connecticut Ave., with all the freedom of terrain he might have had on a remote mountain run.

In New York, the storm was the worst since Christmas week of 1947, when a record 25.8 inches of snow fell on Dec. 26-27. The current storm's 17 to 20 inches in the metropolitan area eclipsed 1960's previous biggest storm—last March 4 when 14 inches fell.

U.S. Rocket Zips 700 Miles Into Space Radiation Belt

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The National Aeronautics and Space Agency fired a four-stage solid fuel rocket more than 700 miles into the sky Monday to collect scientific data from the edge of space.

The Argo D4 javelin rocket carried a payload designed to measure magnetic fields and hydro magnetic waves between the base of the ionosphere and the inner edge of the outer radiation belt which surrounds the earth.

The 52-foot-long rocket, carrying 36 pounds of instruments, climbed to an altitude of 717 land miles before streaking down to the Atlantic Ocean 460 miles from its firing site.

Herter Off To Paris for NATO Talk

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Christian A. Herter left for Paris Monday night prepared to tell the North Atlantic Treaty allies that the United States may have to consider a "material redeployment" of its troops in Europe unless its dollar troubles are substantially alleviated.

Secretary of Treasury Robert R. Anderson and Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr., who will be the other U.S. representatives at the council meeting, flew on the same plane with Herter. The meeting will be held from Dec. 16 to 18.

According to informed sources here, President Eisenhower gave Herter oral instructions to indicate to the NATO council that a withdrawal of some American forces may be the only alternative open to the U.S. If this country does not get sufficient help from its allies in its balance of payments difficulties.

Cuba Cities Bombed by Leaflets

HAVANA (UPI)—A fleet of "ghost planes" showered hundreds of thousands of anti-Castro leaflets on Cuba's major cities early Monday in the boldest defiance of the regime since it took office.

The "leaflet raid" on Havana, carried out by a single, high-flying raider, started shortly after 1 a.m. while a crowd milled about a Communist art show in Central Park.

Simultaneously, according to Cuban exile sources in New York, other aircraft made similar "raids" on major cities in the interior.

The leaflets called Cubans "to arms" in what it said was the "decisive hour for liberty." They called for an "invisible army" within Cuba and warned "every Cuban will be judged in the hour of victory for his participation in the war of liberation."

Those Cubans able to join guerrilla forces in the mountains were urged to do so. Others were called on to sabotage public utilities, vehicles, machinery and firearms and to write slogans of opposition in theaters, on walls and to attend church services and to support the Catholic crusade against Castro.

A few hours after the raids, authorities disclosed that an army truck loaded with militiamen had plunged off a mountain road near the south Cuba city of Trinidad, killing six and injuring 60. At least 10 of the injured were in serious condition. Army investigators inspected the wreckage for suspected sabotage.

Unpledged To Ballot for Sen. Byrd

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Mississippi's eight and Alabama's six unpledged presidential electors agreed Monday to vote for Sen. Harry Byrd, D-Va.

The 14 unpledged electors were elected officially as a move to gain civil rights concessions for the South and a Southern president.

The electors met in a session closed to the press but open to W. J. Simmons of Jackson, editor of the pro-segregation monthly newspaper, the Citizens Council.

A statement laid down an ultimatum of the other Southern states, saying:

"Whether such a man (as Byrd) will be inaugurated as president . . . depends upon whether or not the people of the South who have expressed their dedication to the principles of constitutional government and to the right of a state to determine for itself the questions of segregation and freedom of association are sincere in the continued expressions of such dedication."

Phone Threats Stop At New Orleans

By JOHN G. WARNER

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Federal marshals escorted eight white children into an integrated school Monday and threats to kill their parents suddenly began to dwindle.

Mrs. Charles Conner, mother of four children who are ignoring a white boycott to attend William Frantz School with a lone Negro girl, said she has not been threatened with death since Sunday and was worried.

"I can't understand it," she said.

FOURTH WEEK BEGINS

William Frantz and McDonogh No. 19 school opened for the fourth week of integrated classes Monday with the situation in New Orleans at its most serene point since integration began.

All teachers showed up for their classes—even though most were empty classes—at the two integrated schools Monday, despite the Legislature's moves to deny them their pay.

The total of nine children in Frantz School—eight white and one Negro—was the same total as last Friday, when threats of violence, vandalism and economic reprisals cut attendance sharply from 24 to nine.

ALL TO THEMSELVES

At McDonogh No. 19, the three Negroes in the first grade there had the school to themselves for the 12th day.

Mrs. N. H. Sand, president of Save Our Schools, Inc., which furnished drivers to take the children to school until incessant threats caused them to turn the job over to the marshals, said threatening calls at her home have dwindled sharply.

Of the eight white children attending school Monday, four were the children of Mrs. Conner, whose husband, a superintendent for a steamship office, is relatively free from economic reprisal. Others at the school were the daughter of James Gabrielle, who quit his job because of harassment and plans to leave the city at the end of the month, the daughter of the Rev. L. A. Foreman, and two unidentified children.

Apparently the hecklers decided they had whittled the attendance down as far as possible with threats and economic reprisals.

The two schools held more than a thousand children before integration began.

Kennedy to Help Out Farmers, Russell Says

Farmers can hope for better days when the Kennedy administration takes office, Sen. Russell said.

"I believe Sen. Kennedy will make a genuine effort to do something for agriculture," Russell told the annual banquet of the Georgia Electric Membership Corporation.

Russell noted that he talked with President-elect Kennedy in Washington 10 days ago.

Apparently referring to Kennedy's civil rights stands, Russell said some of the Massachusetts senator's views "are anathema to me."

ADMIRE HIM

However, Russell said he admires Kennedy and is on friendly terms with him, although he did not enthusiastically support him.

American farmers have been taking "a brutal beating," the senior Georgia senator said. He called "misguided" efforts of Republican Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson "one of the tragedies of this era."

Rural electricity, Russell said, has provided good farmers a tie with the land that has kept them from giving up farming.

HONORED AT BANQUET

Russell was honored at the banquet for "continued and dedicated support" of the rural electricity program. Russell, who is chairman of a Senate sub-committee on agriculture appropriations, was presented a plaque by Walter Harrison of Millen, president of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

At the Monday night banquet held at the Henry Grady Hotel, LaVerne Goodrum of Warner Robins was crowned "Miss Georgia Rural Electrification." She will represent Georgia at a NRECA meeting in Dallas, Tex., in February.

Second and third places went to Angeline Leigh Jordan of Girard and Patricia Diann Brook of Bremen.

Vandiver Asks U.S. to Free Banked Soil for Drought Aid

Georgia's farmers and foresters Monday faced the 12th week of an autumn-long drought that has stunted winter grains, dried up watering ponds and turned Georgia's woodlands into a virtual tinderbox.

The drought prompted Gov. Vandiver to wire the U.S. secretary of agriculture Monday, asking him to authorize land under the soil bank for use as grazing to relieve drought-stricken livestock farmers.

WIRED BENSON

In a telegram to Secretary of Agriculture Benson, Vandiver said:

"The lack of rainfall, commencing in the late summer and continuing through the fall, has caused a severe drought that has resulted in an acute shortage of grazing, forage and water for livestock. It has been virtually impossible to seed or obtain growth of winter crops upon which our farmers depend for the majority of their winter and fall grazing."

"If this wind keeps blowing, the land will be as dry as ever again by tomorrow," said James C. Turner Jr., forestry commission fire control chief.

Turner said a total of 1,175 forest fires have been reported in Georgia since Dec. 1. The blazes have destroyed an estimated 13,225 acres of timber.

U.S. Fights Walden Tax Case Shift

The government Monday contested J. Whiteley Walden's request to transfer all three counts of an income tax charge against him to federal court in the Southern District of Georgia.

District Attorney Charles D. Read Jr. conceded that Walden gave Louisville, which is in the Southern District, as his address on two of the three returns for which he was indicted here.

However, Read said a Macon address was given on the third return. Macon is in the Middle District of Georgia. Therefore, Read said, transfer of the third count against Walden should be overruled.

Walden, a big seller to the state during the Griffin administration, is charged with evading more than $50,000 in federal income taxes for 1955, 1956 and 1957.

Fire Losses Cut In Half Here For 11 Months

Fire losses in Atlanta for the first 11 months of 1960 were nearly 50 per cent less than for the same period last year, Fire Chief C. H. Hildebrand told the Board of Firemasters Monday night.

Hildebrand attributed the sharp reduction to more inspections by firehouse personnel and also by the inspection bureau, listing 50,201 inspections for the 1960 period.

Losses for the first 11 months of 1959 totaled $3,124,844 or $5.39 per capita, he said, asserting that losses for the 1960 period were $1,709,247 or $3.31 per capita.

It promoted Lt. L. G. Styron, of Station 8 and son of the late Chief Styron, to succeed Capt. J. V. Carter of No. 14, who will retire Jan. 1, and elected Fireman James L. Pittman of station 11, to succeed Styron.

Today on Peachtree

a solid gold Christmas to you, too

We didn't really flip when we heard that a well known specialty shop in the oil-rich southwest was advertising his and her airplanes for sale in their famous Christmas catalogue. Such extravaganzas are part and parcel of their success. But, we did do a double take when we read that a small but obviously courageous company in Anderson, Minnesota, was enjoying its most profitable season selling gold-plated garbage cans filled with caviar for the nice round figure of $1,312,000 (complete, that is). Such news sent us on our way through Davison's scouting for gifts unique, imaginative, and even a little mad for the proverbial girl who has everything, and the man who just sits around clipping coupons.

Though we don't stock airplanes, we're sure we can get you and yours a Star-Jet from our Lockheed friends up in Marietta for a million dollars—give or take $100,000.

But, for you who are bent on being cozy in your gift-giving this Christmas, Davison's is abounding with his and her selections that cost a bit less. We were intrigued by a set of lovey-dovey soap bars cuddled together in a pretty gift box; and, as plainly marked, one bar is for Mr. and one is for Mrs. These are primarily for looks and laughs, and not for lather. They swing from threaded cords, and can be suitably hung to enhance the decor of the most lavish bathroom. They're all yours for merry gifting for $1.49 in our Bath Accessory Shop on the Third Floor.

And, if there is on your list a lady who drives a Mercedes on Monday, a Cadillac on Sunday, and considers mink mundane, we suggest a wolf. We mean, of course, our wild-wild, wide-wide wolf handbag. A real long-hair, bushy and beautiful, it's big enough to pack enough for a long weekend trip. It has the shock affect of a throw or ermine, yet costs only $89.50. You'll find it snuggled among other rare and special gifts in Davison's Boutique on the Second Floor.

Men (and women) whose life occupation is a daily check of the stock market page usually take their golf game as seriously. You'll hit par as Santa Claus if you give them a set of three 14K golden golf balls with six matching golden tees. Underneath their glamorous paint is the real McCoy, yet the price is only $4.95 in the Sporting Goods Department on the Third Floor.

Doctor, lawyer, merchant or Indian chief—if your man-of-means has a sense of humor and enjoys 3-minute eggs, you'll add a lot of laughs to his breakfast with our little egg-head. He's a handmade egg cup who wears a whimsical painted face and comes complete with a separate knitted stocking cap the cook can put over the egg to keep it warm if the master of the house overlooks the alarm clock.

We could go on until next Christmas with such choice last-minute gift suggestions from Davison's. But, right now, we must bow out, we've sold ourselves, we're going to revise our gift list, and here is the zero hour.

Atlanta Cannot and Must Not Tolerate Cancerous Growth of Bigotry and Hate

Two years ago last October Atlanta's Jewish Temple on Peachtree street was bombed late in the night with an appalling destruction of property.

Now it is a school that is bombed in the early morning hours of Monday, with thousands of dollars in damage to public property. Private homes in the neighborhood were badly damaged.

Again fortunately there was no loss of life. But there could have been and it is more than obvious that those who have perpetrated these outrages against the good name of the City of Atlanta have neither respect for property or person.

These cowardly actions are crimes against every citizen of this community. As long as there are such persons loose among us, none is safe. No church, no school, no business house or home can be called secure when there are such diseased, hate-filled minds at work under cover of darkness, plotting violence and destruction.

To what extent is the community responsible? How much to blame are some of our political leaders who preach defiance of law? How can those organized groups such as the Klan proclaim their peaceful intent when one of their leaders loudly exhorts its members on the schools, "Let's burn them up; let's close them up!"?

Mayor Hartsfield blames most of the trouble on people who do not live inside the limits of Atlanta. He says further they are "going to intimidate neither the government of Atlanta nor its good citizenship." He warns that unless the good people of the city assert themselves, a few little, loud-mouthed racial demagogues will be mistaken for the voice of Atlanta.

No matter from whence they came—whether they be outsiders or the home-grown variety—the picture they have given the world of Atlanta today is of a school bombed in the night. It is an image which mirrors a community's shame. These and other incidents of violence are not the voice of Atlanta but they have made victims of all of us.

This community cannot and must not tolerate the cancerous growth of bigotry and hate and their expression in violence and destruction. Let the guilty be brought to justice and let Atlanta serve notice that the hatemongers and spawners of discord are not the voice of this community!

Meanwhile, let us all remember today that the big story from Atlanta everywhere—including Europe, Asia, Latin America, Africa and those countries behind the Iron Curtain—is of a school bombed in the night.

Foreign Policy Team Is Loaded with Ability

The Constitution strongly supported Adlai Stevenson for appointment as secretary of state. We still think he would have been an excellent choice. But we can find little to quarrel with in the final selection of native Georgian Dean Rusk for the post.

In fact, as the foreign policy team took definite shape yesterday, it seems to us that America's voice in foreign affairs will be stronger in the Kennedy administration that at any time in recent history.

Dean Rusk is an experienced, able man with a wide knowledge of U.S. foreign problems. He is a good administrator with few political scars. He is articulate and is respected by Congress.

It is excellent news, however, that Stevenson's talents will be put to good use in the United Nations. His acceptance of the ambassadorial post in that agency greatly will strengthen our position. He will have Cabinet rank, thus participating in policy making. He is respected and liked throughout the free world and his ideas equally so.

In naming Chester Bowles as under-secretary of state, President-elect Kennedy chose a man whose experience and ability qualifies him for the post.

At a time when the nation demands the strongest leadership in charting foreign policy, Kennedy seems to have found it.

'M-Day' Demonstrates That Georgians Care

The brightest day in the year for thousands of Milledgeville State Hospital patients is "M-Day." Its second annual observance was held yesterday.

Thanks to the Georgia Municipal Assn., Mrs. Betty Vandiver and donors throughout the state, once again there is a large collection of Christmas gifts for distribution to the mentally ill.

This is a far cry from years gone by when the only thing done to bring any semblance of the season to inmates was the work of the hospital staff and a relatively few citizens on the outside.

"M-Day" is another reflection of the change for the better in the attitudes of people in all walks of life toward the mentally ill. It also demonstrates the generosity of Georgians who, once aware of a need, find ways to meet it through humanitarian actions.

Ballot Boxes in Telfair Runneth Over—Again

Elections surely must be very serious things in Telfair County.

Interest is so keen that mighty feats are performed at the polls, judging from information collected by staff writer Jack Nelson for his series of articles in The Constitution.

Where else but in a county like Telfair can dead persons arise from the grave and cast ballots?

There are several other mysteries. Among them are the following:

Names of persons who have never lived in Telfair appear as voters. The same applies for many who moved from the county years ago.

Come election time, the Milan precinct strangely experiences a tremendous population boom. Names of hundreds of more people are voted than latest figures from the U.S. Census Bureau show reside in the Telfair portion of Milan.

Persons who say they did not vote are listed as having voted.

Then there's the unique custom whereby those who for one reason or another do not go to the polls can have their ballots marked right there at a voting place by their kinfolks.

In fact, it seems that the political bosses regard Telfair as an island unto itself and to hang with certain state or federal regulations.

State Legislatures Move Further Into Background

State governments are generally being consigned to a background role because of the failure of rural-dominated legislatures to come to grips with pressing public problems. This is the view of South Carolina's governor, Ernest Hollings.

That his eyesight is 20-20 is nowhere more evident than in his neighbor state, Georgia.

Atlanta (or Savannah or Rome or Brunswick) gets precious little help from the State Capitol.

If Atlanta wants to pay teachers attractive salaries, it must use its own monies. The state doesn't provide enough. (But the state does take money collected in Atlanta to support schools in rural areas that can't or won't maintain their own schools.)

If Atlanta wants to renew its slum areas, it must turn to the federal government. The state doesn't care to be in the urban renewal business. (But it has shown great desire to build rural roads.)

Legislatures which don't represent the people won't tend to the people's business. Until state house politicians begin to understand cities' rights as well as their claim to understand states' rights, Gov. Hollings' judgment will continue to be correct. Legislatures will move more and more into the background, further and further out of touch with the people.

And cities will continue to look to Washington for the solutions to their problems.

Looks Like Lonely Day For Sheriff of Fulton

New Year's Day looms as a right lonely day for Fulton Sheriff T. Ralph Grimes.

Commissions of his 2,067 special deputies expire Dec. 31. It will take a little time to process applications for renewals.

The reason why persons need to be special deputies is, of course, because they handle money in their businesses or are guards or security officers and must carry guns.

Why don't they just apply for a pistol carrying permit, the sheriff was asked the other day. No reply.

But as everyone knows, certainly politics has not the faintest connection with the sheriff's issuing commissions to 2,067 persons, plus those previously on the list but not at the present time.

At any rate, perhaps the sheriff's office will not collapse or the world come to an end during the short interval Mr. Grimes is without his prized roll of special deputies.

All Doctors Aren't Greedy

Doctors from all over Georgia gathered in Atlanta Saturday for a meeting and they got the needle for a change. They asked for it. The members of the Medical Assn. of Georgia invited a panel of laymen to criticize them—to tell them what is wrong with their "image."

The panel rather cruelly omitted the good and explored the imperfections. Doctors individually tend to be tough-minded thinkers but in herd they conform too much—and too often to narrow views—panel members said.

The panelists accused doctors as a group of being afraid of each other; of being hypersensitive to criticism; of falling politically into the kind of conservatism that indicates they are unsympathetic to less well-off people; of getting their ethics tangled into a gag rule that invites malpractice suits because they won't advise lawyers, hobbies news accuracy because they shy from newspapermen, and abdicates doctor leadership on public issues for fear they will say something unpopular.

The doctors were told their group resistance to medical care for the aged typifies the kind of foot-dragging that leads the public to think they are more anxious to guard their self-interest than to measure fairly the public interest.

The Georgia doctors listened gamely. It is safe to predict, however, that the American Medical Assn. will not suddenly swing to socialized medicine.

More than likely we will see the doctors, as a group, back themselves further away from public sympathy by blocking and railing at an effective—and inevitable—medical care plan for the elderly during the congressional fight that impends.

This negative side will predictably print itself upon the public mind. The "image" of doctors will not be improved, in a society concerned with its elderly, to see the doctors concerned with their prerogatives.

Meanwhile the public will not be aware of positive facts that could put a halo instead of horns on the doctor, because the doctor's group, like so many political conservatives, tends to be such an "aginner" that it ignores positive argument. One example will suffice. It is provided by R. C. Cropper, trustee of Macon Hospital.

Mr. Cropper notes that in Macon Hospital alone last year, doctors donated to humanity, without any financial return, 1,691 general operations which, at $75 each, totaled $126,825 worth; 1,299 minor operations, $20 each, $25,980; 1,402 obstetrical cases, $50 each, $70,100; 31-100 charity patient days, $3 per visit, $95,400; outpatient care, 46-402 visits, $3 each, $139,206, for a grand total of $457,511.

Macon doctors gave away nearly a half million dollars' worth of medical care without gain and said nothing about it at a time when 75 per cent of the complaints which reached Mr. Cropper came—you guessed it—from people who felt greedy doctors were overcharging them.

Republican Contest Shifts to Congress

WASHINGTON—Three Republican presidential hopefuls for 1964 are already preparing to mount three wholly different and competing pressures on the new Congress. Each man looks upon this as the place of crisis, for his own hopes and for the future hopes of the GOP itself. Each will try to control, or at least to help shape, the actions and tone of the Republican side of that Congress.

One, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, will sit in Congress and may have a small operating advantage, simply that of being on the scene. The other two, Richard M. Nixon and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, must exert their influence from afar and through congressional friends and supporters.

Thus the wheel of circumstances now turns full circle. A year ago, with the White House in Republican hands, a solitary Republican, Vice President Nixon, held a monopoly on the 1960 presidential nomination. It was then the Democrats who—on the outside looking in—had a large, restless group of aspirants.

Then, Sens. Kennedy, Johnson and Symington were maneuvering as rivals toward 1960. Now, beginning in January, Nixon, Rockefeller and Goldwater will become the maneuvering rivals—this time for 1964. They take the old places of Kennedy, Johnson and Symington in the great game of musical chairs.

What is most strikingly new in all this is the proof it offers of a revolutionary change in the realities of power in American politics. It used to be that senators and members of the House of Representatives rarely achieved decisive stature at presidential nominating conventions. The big wheelers and dealers

'Every Intelligent Citizen Must Take Stand Against the Ku Klux Klan,' Georgian Says

Athens—The members of the Ku Klux Klan, I am quite sure, would feel absolutely no qualms of conscience whatsoever in using the match and/or the buckshot to further their heinous and ridiculous cause.

My home is in perhaps the heart of the KKK Belt (South-central) of our "fair" state, and the cross-burnings, malicious demonstrations, and acts of terrorism which have occurred in

It seems to me that the time has arrived when every intelligent being in this state must take a positive stand against this organization, and openly denounce the Ku Klux Klan for exactly what it is: an irresponsible, malicious cancer which thrives on mob tactics and violence!

'Accidents Caused By Excessive Speed'

East Point — Why do captions such as "Rains Produce Car Accidents," "Death Comes Racing Out of the Dark" and "How Do You Explain Daddy Was Killed" appear in the Atlanta newspapers? Because of the lackadaisical, don't give a damn attitude of the public of the state of Georgia and of the United States. Accidents are caused by reckless and careless drivers, not by rain, but by driving at speeds excessive for weather, light and road conditions! W. MOORE.

YWCA Draws Praise For Integration Stand

Atlanta—This letter comes in appreciation for the progressive attitude of the board of directors of the Atlanta YWCA. When I read the very fine statement issued by the YWCA board on service to Negro patrons, I felt proud of the women of the YWCA who see their principles clearly and have the courage to implement them in a time of crisis. The Atlanta YWCA has taken an important step in the South which sets a precedent for similar agencies in the region. MRS. D. S. MANLEY.

'Right to an Education Refused to the Negro'

Sandy Springs—In this age of machines, rockets and Soviet threats, we the people of the United States are faced with a problem of our own, man's equality.

Has anyone ever thought of asking a teen-ager his views? As a teen-ager I have my own.

I would say that any person, no matter what race, creed, or color, has the right as a U.S. citizen to a free education through the last year of high school. This right has been refused to the black people of the Southern states. A FELLOW GEORGIAN.

Emory Boasts 'Chow Palace'

In the Mail: Unconfirmed rumor (now proved false). We may have a woman for Secretary of State. Who?

Why, Lucille Ball. Because of her experience with Cubans. And from "Wily John" Rozier, head of the Emory news bureau: "While you are on the subject of disappearing Georgia towns, Mt. Zion in Hancock County has just about gone except for the old church and the graveyard full of early settlers born mostly in Connecticut in the 1700's. Oldtimers in Hancock say Mt. Zion missed being the State Capitol by a few votes and Milledgeville was chosen instead. Former Gov. William J. Northen's home is still standing there. There is also a Mt. Zion in Carroll County which I trust is in a more flourishing condition."

OF ALL THINGS: Emory students are calling their fine new food center "Chow Palace." The name may stick. . . Neighbor Bill Langhorst knows of a fellow who got a letter like this: "Please send me the name of a good lawyer in your town. I may have to sue you." . . . Macon's genial Joe Pruett got 611 letters with 817 signatures, from 34 states and 95 Georgia towns, on Joe Pruett Appreciation Day which close friends got up to celebrate Joe's birthday last month. . . The census lists 130 cities in the U.S. of more than 100,000 pop. Three are in Georgia—Atlanta, Savannah, Columbus. . . Leodel Coleman at Statesboro reports the yo-yo as coming back. Well, it's had its ups and downs. . . The New York Central has declared the wrist watch official for railroad use. Thus, railroad timekeeping on the NYCL is now out of pocket.

There is an air of Cumberland about this sweet but eerie scene and, by one of those odd and nagging thoughts that rise to disturb the mind, the topography of Vandenberg reminds me of the hills of Calvary in the Holy Land when spring is there.

In one of the Vandenberg hills there is a hole. And this hole, nearly 200 feet deep and 60 feet across, is perhaps the most shocking and profoundly impressive sight that the United States has to offer to a menacing and frightening world.

It Looks Like Calvary in Spring

VANDENBERG AIR BASE, Calif.—Behind me are the long, great rollers of the Pacific Ocean falling with soft thunder on the lonely, yellow beach. In front lies the great air base of Vandenberg in southern California. There is nothing like it elsewhere in the world; 68,000 acres of low hills, shallow valleys and unsloped moorland.

There are wild ducks in little swamps and there are hundreds of roaming deer moving through the glades and woodlands. They are so prolific that at night they come down to the aerodrome and endanger incoming aircraft. With a touch of the unbelievably bizarre that characterizes this strange and unnerving place, the deer are kept away by a synthetic trail of lion's scent which is regularly laid near the runway.

Eddie BarkerThe Mornings Are Just as Bad
As Coming Home in the Evening

We have been through the thing about trouble at my house each night between 6 and 8, how the children cut up, and what a coward I am for wanting to miss this misery of a crying baby, a TV-tuning toddler and the homework do you manage to get away from the bad business of getting everyone up? And isn't this too a time of trouble? Answers to those three questions are (1) I do mind the mornings; (2) I don't get away from getting everyone up, and (3) this truly is a time of trouble.

Each day, five days each week, it happens.

A man, I think, should be away from home, at least my home, by 6 a.m. But I do not say this—I only think it. I said last week that a man shouldn't be in at night until after 8 and I caught y-u know what.

"If you're not here for the trouble," a wife had said, "don't bother to come back at all."

Of the morning mess she added, "If you leave before it begins, be gone for good."

It begins, of course, with the baby. In her hard head is a tiny alarm set for 6. And she knows that if she cries long enough, and loud enough, someone will come to dry her bottom. Sometimes, when a wife feigns sleep, that someone is me. The baby smiles happily, and something like love rises in me, only to drop downward when she cries and the new diaper is dampened. "Come in here," I yell, "and hush this fuss."

This gets it going. She can't see, she says, how a man can father three children and know so little about them. "I know enough to leave this one alone."

But by now there are two more. The boys come out of their beds fighting. The big one knocks the little one down. Two of the three are crying. "All right, that does it." And with a bell I'm trying to put through loops to pants, I whip the school boy. He cries. That's three sets of tears now.

Breakfast menus are beautiful. One wants pancakes, another eggs, and the baby, by now, is screaming again for milk. Time has taught me not to face this, so I shower and shave. I get back in by asking, "Where are my socks?" But I'm late. The school boy is calling for his; also for shirts and slacks. The little boy is demanding that he be dressed and this is when the hushed that is used everyday is ruled: "Can't anyone around here do anything for themselves? Do I have to dress this baby and the three of you also?

"Just quit hiding my socks," I say. "That's all I ask." She finds them and I'm action ready. My tasks I do perform. Pulling boys' shirts from drawers, pants from the racks. I wash faces and comb hair. "One dab or two to do it?" I ask. "One, daddy. We don't want no girls kissing us." They've seen the television ads. Both laugh when I take two dabs. "Your daddy," I say, "isn't afraid of kissing."

Seeing us now, sharpened up and smiling, teeth brushed and hair Brill creamed in place, Shirley Barker smiles. She is sitting, sipping coffee, and is not at all the shrew who was saying that we were all helpless. "My men," she says. "My men."

Men until the next morning, and then we are something else again.

Roy O. McClainSome 57 Varieties Produced
By Makers of Excuses, Too

It is not only a major soup company that produces 57 varieties; millions of religious people produce 57 varieties of excuses for not living up to their commitments to God. For a quarter of a century I have compiled a long list of excuses heard from many sources. From rich, poor, young and old come the recurring, monotonous statements. It is amazing how consistent the excuses run from varied sources. In forthright clarity Jesus said, "Ye blind guides . . . who strain at a gnat and swallow a camel."

Most of the "gnats" of life are merely excuses for not doing one's honest duty. Close to the top of the list is this excuse: "I don't feel like it." Sometimes this excuse can be an honest reason. God doesn't expect anyone who is physically unable to attend church. But using "I don't feel like it" as a convenient crutch to indulge one's lack of interest is something else indeed.

Health is an illusive thing but it is common fact that much of how we feel in mind and body is determined by attitude and disciplined thinking. A negative, sour attitude can put the body in a state of malfunction. Worry and all its pagan allies can put us flat on our backs. To give in to that old dull, useless feeling is the worst surrender of all.

"The church is behind the times" is another common excuse. What usually is meant by this one is that the person speaking hasn't been to church in a decade and doesn't really know how far he is behind the times. True, there is much that goes on in some churches that speaks of a bygone era, yet the fault finder and excuse maker

Prof. David Bell becomes Kennedy's budget director. It's his job to try to make ends meet with a gleam in his eye, a song in his heart—and an alibi on the tip of his tongue.

Minnesota's Hubert Humphrey is slated for assistant Senate leader. He's the new Democratic strong man, having lugged Kennedy on his back all through Minnesota.

Kennedy has a final test for his new frontiersmen. To get a job, they must stand bare-headed without top coat on the steps of his home. If their teeth chatter, they're out.

are hardly in position to evaluate either.

"I don't have to go to church to be a Christian" is monotonously familiar. This excuse is just as logical as saying that one doesn't have to go to school in order to be educated.

Going to church no more makes one a Christian than going to a bank makes one rich. But just as the bank has the money that can make one rich if he invests long enough, so can the church yield its dividends only when one puts something into it long enough.

"There are too many hypocrites in the church" is the excuse of thousands. Well, that is true—one hypocrite in the church is too many. And the mischief about the matter is that if these excuse-makers came into the church, there would be that many more hypocrites inside. Still, I believe I will take my chances with a few hypocrites in the church now than with all of them in hell hereafter.

As Georgia's Johnny Chestnut

You can't beat a mountaineer for bringing a fresh point of view to things. I don't know why I'm always surprised when a friend comes down from the hill country and shows me a familiar sight from a new and enchanting perspective. Our tall friend from up toward Turnip town blew into the city the other day, bringing with him an outlook as crisp and tart and invigorating as a draught of cold mountain air or a bite of frost-touched winesap apple.

He hadn't seen Lenox Square, that behemoth of suburban convenience, that answer to the poor parker's prayer. And when he first saw the stores spread out all bright and pretty like a nosegay with a mile-wide frill of parking space around it, he wasn't bug-eyed. He merely said thoughtfully, "Looks like there's one or two folks down there maybe."

What really brought an exclamation of delight from him was those funny modernistic lighting poles with the orange balls poking out in all directions. "Martin gourds!" he cried approvingly. "They're finally getting some sense in town."

While he was here he told me about another mountain friend who has the same fresh approach to quite another matter. James Reece, linotype operator for the Ellijay Times-Courier for many years, is a man who likes, as we say, to "loaf" around the woods with fishing pole or gun. He spends many a happy hour prowling the hills and coves and, like all true woodsmen, it's a matter of deep grief to him that the chestnut trees are not coming back any faster.

Many years ago a blight hit the chestnut trees of our Southern mountains, robbing the small game of an important food and mountain families of a source of income. They say mountain children used to gather the chestnuts and sell them in town for the meager sum of 50 cents a bushel and no holiday feast was complete without them. Foresters have seen evidence of their coming back but if it is true it is a very slow process and Mr. Reece has wondered if the squirrels and chipmunks and wild turkeys will long survive with chestnuts gone completely and hickory nuts becoming increasingly hard to find.

Alone among all the people who bemoan the passing of the chestnuts, however, Mr. Reece has a plan for doing something about it. He suggests that foresters and game wardens and, for that matter, just plain citizens who love the woods, equip themselves with a pocket full of Chinese chestnuts and every time they see a likely spot on hill or creek bank that they plant a chestnut.

I haven't checked this out with any experts but it sounds like a real practical plan to me and if adopted the day may come when James Reece of Georgia is renowned as a Johnny Appleseed, benefactor of mankind.

Burge Convicted, Given 5-10 Years

Macon businessman Chester A. Burge, recently acquitted on a charge of murdering his wife, Monday was convicted of a morals charge and sentenced to 5 to 10 years in prison.

The jury of 11 men and one woman deliberated only 45 minutes before returning the verdict of guilty.

They fixed his minimum sentence at 5 years and the maximum 10, and Superior Court Judge Oscar Long made that the sentence of the court.

Burge was indicted on the morals charge involving a Negro employee at the same time he was indicted in the murder of his wife. He returned to a Bibb County jail Monday one month to the day after his acquittal on the murder charge.

Defense attorneys immediately filed notice of appeal and Long set it for hearing Jan. 24. The judge will hear arguments Tuesday on a motion for bond pending appeal.

After Burge's trial was completed and the case given the jury, Long fined Burge's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Burge, $100 each on charges of contempt of court.

They were cited on charges of attempting to alter testimony of a witness in Burge's trial.

New Orleans Rebuffed by High Court

By BETTY PRYOR

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court refused Monday to halt the desegregation of New Orleans schools with blunt language which all but branded the Louisiana Legislature's anti-integration efforts unconstitutional.

In an unsigned but unanimous opinion, the high court rejected the state's request that the integration orders of a three-judge federal court be shelved until all appeal action is exhausted.

Further, the court declared that Louisiana's specially passed state laws to block integration were based on a legal argument that has already been ruled unconstitutional. They are "without merit," the high tribunal held.

Court aides said the action did not prevent Louisiana authorities from pressing their appeal action. But a Justice Department attorney said he believed any such action would be "pointless" in view of the court's firm language.

Louisiana authorities, seeking to prevent the integration of two previously all-white elementary schools, held that a state has a right to "interpose" itself between the federal courts and the people in school questions.

But the Supreme Court said "the scope of these enactments and the basis on which they were found in conflict with the Constitution of the United States are not matters of doubt."

At issue was the ruling of the three-man federal court which had thrown out the Louisiana legislative "package" on Nov. 30.

The original desegregation order was handed down by Federal District Judge J. Skelly Wright last May 16. The entry of four Negro first graders into two New Orleans schools touched off demonstrations by some white mothers and anti-integrationists and threats of violence against parents who insisted on escorting their white children into the two school buildings.

The court, in declaring that interposition is "illegal defiance of constitutional authority," recalled that it had similarly thrown out the doctrine in the Little Rock school case two years ago.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower will not have a news conference this week, the White House said Monday.

Laos Reds Digging In

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Communist Pathet Lao forces joined up with Vientiane garrison troops of leftist paratroop Capt. Kong Le here Monday as Soviet planes airlifted arms into this isolated Laotian capital for the second straight day.

Kong Le announced the merging of Red troops into his command which is digging in for an expected armed showdown with the anti-Communist forces of pro-Western Brig. Gen. Phoumi Nosavan advancing toward this tense capital.

(In Bangkok, the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization council convened hastily to discuss the "serious situation" in the pact area arising from the Laos crisis. A statement issued after the meeting denounced as "outside interference" the Soviet arms deliveries and said that Moscow in conflict at the expense of the interference only would prolong the Laotian people).

Brittain Fought for Schools

By FRANK WELLS

The President of the United States asked Georgia's Grand Old Man of Education what was his philosophy of life.

"I believe a man's first duty is to make a living. A man is not much use to himself or his country if he's a charity case. . . ."

Dr. Marion Luther Brittain, who dedicated 65 years of his life to the education of Georgia youth, was years ahead of his time when he saw the need for education in the practical arts and sciences.

FDR PUT QUESTION

The President of the United States who asked the question was Franklin Delano Roosevelt. He asked Dr. Brittain to explain his philosophy to patients at Warm Springs.

Dr. Brittain was president of Georgia Tech when he made the statement to the patients at Warm Springs. He was president emeritus of the great state engineering school when he died in 1953. He had served Tech since becoming president in 1922.

But he was an expert hand in the educational field when he took the reins at Tech.

BORN IN WILKES

Dr. Brittain was born in Wilkes County on Nov. 11, 1866, the son of a Baptist minister, Dr. Jabez Mercer Brittain, who had served the Confederacy as a lieutenant in the Confederate army. His mother was Ida Callaway Brittain.

Dr. Brittain was graduated from Emory College—then located in Oxford—in 1886, and came

The accompanying article on Dr. Brittain is one of a series of weekly articles by Constitution staffers on famed Georgians. Dr. E. M. Coulter, retired head of the history department of the University of Georgia, is adviser for the series. Readers, particularly students, are urged to save this article as a quiz on Dr. Brittain will be published in Thursday's Constitution. The series will be suspended for the holiday season, but will be resumed Jan. 3.

to Atlanta for his first entry into the educational field as principal at Crew Street School two years later.

In 1890, he moved over to old Boys High School where he was head of the department of languages. In 1898 he went to the University of Chicago for graduate studies. When he returned in 1900, he became principal (superintendent) of Fulton County Schools and held that position until 1910, when he was made state superintendent of schools.

HAD FLAMING COURAGE

He served as state superintendent until he was named president of Tech in 1922.

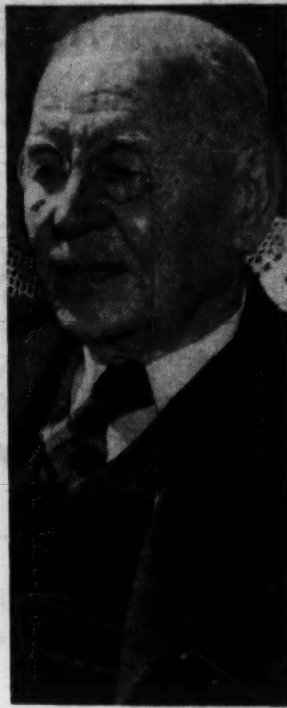

He was the author of six books. Although in some ways the perfect example of the gentle-mannered college professor, Dr. Brittain had the bright, flaming courage that feeds on the fuel of intellectual honesty.

He bucked state politicians from Tom Watson to Gene Talmadge— if he thought their actions would harm his schools. And he got what he wanted by uncompromisingly asking for the best.

BUCKED WATSON

When Dr. Brittain first was named superintendent of Georgia schools on an interim basis, he was asked to name a political friend of Tom Watson's to an important post. The man was not qualified and Dr. Brittain refused the appointment.

Tom Watson fought him from then on, even going so far as saying that Dr. Brittain — a stalwart

"MAKE A LIVING"
Dr. Marion Luther Brittain of the Baptist Church — was a secret Catholic priest!

Dr. Brittain was elected again and again to his post as superintendent. But finally he let fly with both barrels at Tom Watson. Watson, in his paper, The Jeffersonian, was advocating resistance to the draft during World War I. Watson even urged rebellion against the draft.

CALLED WATSON TRAITOR

In a speech in Gwinnett County—where plans were being made to follow Watson's cry to resist the draft—Dr. Brittain said:

"I have a son, Marion. . . . He left his studies this morning to join the Marines and serve his country in this time of peril."

"But in the sadness there is pride in his response to his country's call and I would not change places with those of you in Gwinnett who have been led into treason through following that combination of Judas Iscariot and Benedict Arnold called Thomas E. Watson."

"Always a character assassin by trade he first abused President Wilson for his long patience under German injuries and now that war is declared he tries to weaken his arm by counseling his followers to resist the law of the land which has shielded their slacker hides."

GAVE WATSON CREDIT
"Will you follow any such yellow dog?"

Dr. Brittain showed his Christian fairness to Tom Watson, however. His book, "The Story of Georgia Tech," gave a chapter to Tom Watson and gave credit to his greatness.

The book also dealt fully with the late Eugene Talmadge's attempt to pack the Board of Regents—an action which resulted in discreditation of all of Georgia's state schools of college level.

Dr. Brittain was still taking the side he thought right in educational squabbles as late as 1951. In March of that year he publicly urged Georgians to get rid of "inefficient horse-and-buggy administration methods."

Until that was done, he said, the state could not get full benefit from the Minimum Foundation program. He scored the method in most counties (then) of obtaining county school superintendents as inefficient and riddled with politics.

He said in order to obtain the best available school heads, the county board of education should be elected and allowed to appoint a superintendent, rather than having him elected by voters.

One of Dr. Brittain's proudest achievements was the creation of the Guggenheim School of Aeronautics at Tech. He told how the school was born in an interview with Ernest Rogers of The Journal:

"I think it was the excellence of our mathematics teachers that caused us to get the $300,000 Guggenheim award," he said. "In any case, it was incumbent on me to organize the school so I went east on a tour of inspection. At the time I hardly knew a propeller from a hangar, but by visiting the leading centers where aeronautics was taught, I crammed my head so full of information that our school was organized along the most modern lines."

"I crammed on this subject just like an undergraduate cramming for an examination."

"And right here I would like to say that I disagree with some teachers who say a student shouldn't cram for an examination. I believe just the contrary. I think it is a good mental exercise to determine just how much stuff may be packed in the brain in a comparatively short time."

Tech students still cram.

Dr. Brittain was a keen student of the Bible and a Sunday school teacher up until his death. He first started teaching Sunday school at the First Baptist Church in Atlanta when he was just 22.

Dr. Brittain married Miss Lettie McDonald, daughter of Dr. Henry McDonald, pastor of Atlanta's Second Baptist Church.

Dr. Brittain recalled that Dr. McDonald would not give his consent to the marriage "until I transferred my membership to his church."

There his membership remained until his death in 1953. Honors came to the great Georgia educator. He was made an honorary Doctor of Laws by Mercer University in 1919, by the University of Georgia in 1927, and by Emory University in 1928.

He was president of the Georgia Teachers Association in 1906, the Southern Education Association in 1913, and the Council of State Superintendents of the United States in 1917.

For several years he was a member of Federal Prison Industries, Inc., and visited federal penitentiaries throughout the country. From 1934 to 1939 he was a member of the board of visitors for the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Kappa Phi, national honorary scholastic societies, and Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

The Constitution, in an editorial at the time of Dr. Brittain's death, said:

"Of many men it is said they were beloved by a community, but rarely is it said with fuller meaning than in the case of Dr. M. L. Brittain, president emeritus of the Georgia School of Technology . . ."

"Dr. Brittain was a man of gentle disposition, but at the same time of marked ability. He was unrelenting in his efforts to build Georgia Tech specifically and education in the South generally.

"He played a key role in developing the skills and ideas that have helped to transform his state and region into one of the most dynamic in the nation. Realizing the need and demand for technical skills in the growing industrialization of the South, he laid the groundwork that enabled Georgia Tech to help fill the need.

"Dr. Brittain's life was a full one of outstanding achievement in many fields."

Oxford Agents Destroy 271 Stills for Best Month

State revenue enforcement officers, in one of the best months they've had since Dixon Oxford became revenue commissioner, destroyed 271 stills throughout Georgia last month.

Oxford said his officers found and destroyed stills with a capacity of 129,650 gallons of moonshine, poured out 155,860 gallons of mash and 8,531 gallons of illicit liquor.

The officers also confiscated 63 vehicles, made 278 arrests and seized quantities of taxpaid liquor in 11 counties, wine in two counties and beer in three counties.

"We are making a continuing effort on illegal moonshine whiskey," Oxford said. "This has been one of the best months we've had."

Revenue agents had their biggest success in Haralson County where they uncovered 18 stills with a capacity of 2,300 gallons, found 15,900 gallons of mash and poured out 496 gallons of moonshine.

At one still in Lamar County, they found an apparatus with a 1,000-gallon capacity and destroyed 2,160 gallons of mash and 270 gallons of whiskey.

Officers found nine stills in Paulding County and six in Polk County.

No Change In School Laws Seen

Legislators Expect
Debate, No Action

By CHARLES MOORE

Constitution Staff Writer
ATHENS — The 1961 regular session of the General Assembly will feature much sound and fury on Georgia's school crisis, but no actual legislation to keep the public schools open will pass before a special session next summer.

That is the consensus of legislators attending the second Institute for Georgia Legislators here. Many note a growing concern among legislators about the future of public education, although there is still a sizable number hoping the issue will disappear if it isn't discussed.

What will pass the legislature will be a new appropriations bill and a bond issue to finance a major overhaul of the state's existing highway system, legislators said.

SCHOOLS TOP ISSUE

Many legislators polled here said they considered the future of public schools in Georgia—caught between the federal court hammer and the anvil of state laws—will be the basic issue in the '61 session that opens in January.

But only a few predict any constructive school-preserving legislation to pass at that time. Most of those interviewed here said what is needed to spur school action is a federal court order placing Negro children in an Atlanta school.

With the prospect of the ultimate closing of all schools, they feel the General Assembly will then—and only then—take action.

One middle Georgia legislator commented privately such a court order "would untie our hands" and permit legislation to be passed.

RURAL HAZARD

He reported he would like to see some action taken soon. But as a businessman, in a rural section, he said he can't appear to be even a moderate, backing such plans as "local option," and not suffer economically and politically.

But, if faced with a final federal court order, he said he and other legislators can go back home and tell the people there are only two choices: no schools in the whole state or a little integration in Atlanta.

He has no doubt which choice his customers and constituents would make.

Rep. Charlie Pannell of Murray County is one who feels the General Assembly should face the school question next summer. "But I'm afraid it won't," he said.

MUST SPEAK UP

Pannell also believes Georgia citizens, the moderates who have kept quiet so far, are going to have to start speaking out soon. "As citizens, we are going to have to accept our responsibilities a lot more than we have in the last few years. Individuals have got to speak up to their representatives."

Sixth District Sen. Dan J. DeLoach of Statesville said he believes the Legislature will have to repeal the state constitutional section that says schools must be segregated.

On the basis of federal court decree, Georgia will have to either repeal its segregation laws or shut down the schools, he said. "We're going to have to face up to it," he added. "And note this, I'm not in favor of one Negro entering a white school in Georgia."

Rep. Bill Abney of Walker County said the school situation will be a big issue in January "but we probably won't do anything."

"How much can we do until we have another general election and change the Constitution?"

TEACHER RAISE SEEN

Rep. Jack Ray of Warren County is one who doubts the school situation will be an issue in the regular session. "The people of Georgia want segregated schools. I don't think we can have any other kind."

On other issues, which will come up in the regular session, the majority opinion here:

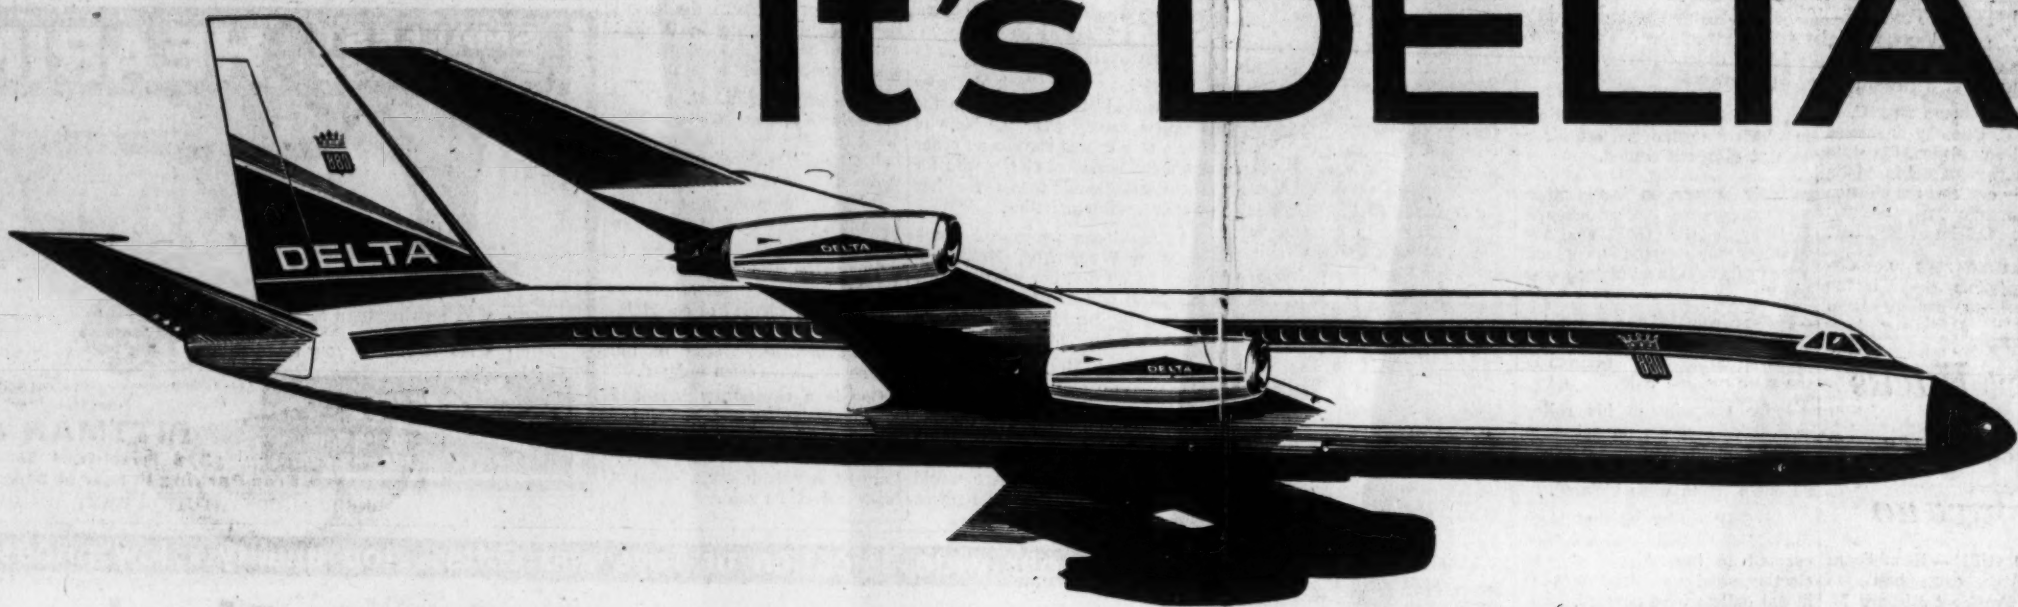

School teachers will get a raise, but it won't be the thousands dollars they are seeking.

The $75 to $100 million bond issue for highway maintenance will pass, but there are several who want safeguards to restrict the money to maintenance and not construction of new roads.

About 200 freshmen and veteran legislators are attending the works, op on legislative procedures and practices that is in session here through Tuesday. "Attendance has exceeded all expectations," said House Speaker George L. Smith. Gov. Ernest Vandiver will address the group at a luncheon Tuesday.

U.S. Court Rejects Texas Recount Bid

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Texas Republicans Monday lost their federal court fight to force state officials to order a recount of more than 1.25 million paper ballots cast in the Nov. 8 presidential election.

Less than two hours after U. S. Judge Ben C. Connally dismissed the Republican petition, the state board of canvassers met in Austin and formally certified the election of 24 Democratic party electors pledged to Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Republican attorneys were discussing a possible appeal of the Connally ruling when reporters advised them of the Austin action, in which a formal request for a recount also was denied.

Hardy Hollers, an Austin attorney who argued the case before Connally for the GOP, said the Austin action "virtually cuts off any further action under state law."

Hollers indicated the only thing Republicans now can do is to press for a bipartisan revision of the state election code.

Judge Connally in his ruling said federal courts do not have jurisdiction in vote contests and that the GOP did not prove that anyone's rights were violated.

The GOP contended that more than 100,000 ballots had not been counted in the Nov. 8 general election, and that thousands of illegal ballots were counted.

The election board said the rejected ballots were improperly marked so as to indicate a vote for three parties.

They asked Connally to order the Texas canvassing board to withhold certification of the Democratic electors and to order a recount of paper ballots.

The Democratic ticket won Texas' 24 electoral college votes by 46,233 ballots.

Belgium Girl Wins

GENEVA (AP)—Jean Williams of Belgium has been chosen council chairman of the 13-nation European nuclear research center.

Court Backs Democrats At Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI)—Republicans Monday lost a court battle to boost Vice President Richard M. Nixon's standing in the Illinois presidential election.

Circuit Judge Thomas Kluczynski rejected a GOP demand that the Chicago and Cook county election canvassing boards revise their vote tallies to correct what the Republicans alleged were irregularities.

The Republicans charged that a recount of Chicago paper ballots last week showed Nixon picking up 5,528 votes if invalid ballots were thrown out. But according to the tally of the Democratic-dominated election board, Nixon gained only 973 votes. Kennedy would have carried Illinois, however, even by the GOP count.

Georgia's Panel In School Study To Meet Again

The 34-member state committee studying Georgia's Minimum Foundation Program will meet for the second time Wednesday. Dr. Claude Purcell, state school superintendent, said Monday.

At its first meeting several weeks ago, the committee recommended that a uniform tax digest be used instead of the present economic index as a basis for distributing state school funds.

The State Board of Education is asking the forthcoming Legislature to authorize gathering of information on the possibilities of a uniform tax digest.

Jackie Selects Gown Designed by Cassini

By FRANCES LEWINE

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Jacqueline Kennedy announced Monday that she has chosen a gown designed by Oleg Cassini to wear to the inaugural gala in Washington Jan. 19.

Cassini, a New York designer who visited Mrs. Kennedy in the hospital shortly after the birth of her son, also will receive an order from the president-elect's wife for three additional gowns for her winter social activities.

As had been announced previously in Washington, Mrs. Kennedy added that her gown for the inaugural ball on Jan. 20 is being created by Bergdorf Goodman, a New York specialty shop.

Word that Mrs. Kennedy has chosen her gowns for the inaugural festivities was released here for Mrs. Kennedy by her husband's press secretary, Pierre Salinger.

But, Salinger said, there would be no details now about the gowns themselves.

Paris-born Cassini, 47, said at his Seventh Avenue offices in New York that the news the first lady had officially selected his designs came as a complete surprise.

He said, however, that he did have "an okay for about five evening dresses."

Though he was not sure which one Mrs. Kennedy would wear to the gala—an evening of entertainment preceding the inauguration, Cassini described some of the gowns that have been ordered.

One is a new straw lace and gros de londres in pink and white; there's a broadcote organza in mandarin orange, a white satin—"almost a sheath dress"—and a black velvet, he said.

Dr. Finch to Argue Double Jeopardy

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Dr. R. Bernard Finch Monday won the right to argue motions seeking his freedom from charges of murdering his wife on grounds a third trial would place him in double jeopardy.

Superior Judge Leroy Dawson set Friday to argue the motions. Under the law, a defendant cannot be placed under threat twice on the same charge. The once-wealthy surgeon's attorneys based their motions Monday on the fact that the jury in his second trial voted to convict him but was unable to decide on the degree of his alleged guilt.

Gunman Robs Woman in Car

An Atlanta woman late Monday was robbed of cash and jewelry by a youthful white man who forced his way at pistol point into her car, police said.

Mrs. Eudora Cummings of 2086 North Fulton Drive, NE, said she stopped for a traffic light at Peachtree and Third streets when a youth in a light tan overcoat ran to her car and jumped in.

Mrs. Cummings said she screamed and the youth flashed a pistol and warned:

"Do as I say and you won't get hurt."

GOES THROUGH PURSE

She said he instructed her to drive out Peachtree to Eighth, and make a right turn and then ordered her to stop near Charles Allen Drive. She said he went through her pocketbook, taking $2 or $3, and then demanded her watch, which she said was valued at $86.

Mrs. Cummings said the youth attempted to take her rings, but they were difficult to remove.

"I told him they were just glass and he left them," Sgt. N. W. Flanagan and Detective R. E. Nickerson said she told them.

Mrs. Cummings said the youth took her checkbook, demanded to know what the bank balance was, then got out of the car and walked away.

COBB STATION ROBBED

Police also placed a lookout on a Negro man wanted in a $650 robbery of a service station at 1500 Austell Rd. in Cobb County. Flanagan said that robbery occurred shortly before midnight.

In an Atlanta theft, three suspects got two new pairs of shoes and one of them got quite a jolt.

Patrolmen M. D. Kennedy and H. L. Valentine said three youthful Negroes took the shoes from a store at 286 Washington St., SW. One ran into a plate glass door, shattering it. They both fled.

Sit-In Camp Asks New Negotiations

Negro leaders of the sit-in demonstrations here Monday invited representatives of three business groups to meet with their group for negotiations.

The Rev. William Holmes Borders, leader of the Atlanta Student-Adult Liaison Committee, told newsmen that telegrams sent to the groups were invitations to "an exploratory conference on 'the issue involved in our selective buying campaign.'"

Borders said the telegrams were to be sent to the presidents of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, the Atlanta Merchants Retail Association and the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce. He said the groups would be asked to send representatives to the meeting at a time to be set.

Monday night none of the heads of the three organizations had received the telegram.

Dom Wyant, president of the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce, said he would reserve comment until the Jaycees hold a regular board meeting Tuesday night and after he had talked with Ivan Allen Jr., head of the Chamber of Commerce. Robert Shelley, president of the Atlanta Retail Merchants Association, said he could not comment, even if he had the telegram, because he had not been included in past meetings between downtown merchants and Negro demonstrators.

Miss Herschelle Sullivan, vice president of the Committee on Appeals for Human Rights, said that until an agreement is reached the sit-ins and picketing will continue.

2 Atlantans Charged at Chattanooga

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Two Atlanta Negroes, accused of trying to wreck a Greyhound bus, were charged Monday with new misdemeanors as charges of interfering with interstate transportation were dropped.

The two, Thomas M. Pennington, 37, and Walter Allen Collins, 23, were arrested Sunday night. The bus driver told officers their car followed the bus from Atlanta and harassed him by traveling "very close to the bus."

Pennington, an insurance company employee, told investigators that four Negro friends aboard the bus asked him to follow it because they were afraid they might be put off. He said he did not know why they held such a fear. The four arrived here without incident.

Pennington and Collins, a laborer, were arrested on vagrancy charges. In addition, officers Monday charged Pennington with reckless driving and Collins with disorderly conduct.

He Sees 2 Watches He Likes— And Takes Them with a Thank You

A tall, middle-aged man Monday walked into a jewelry store at 12 Broad St., NW, and asked to see two watches.

Patrolmen G. H. Wade and S. R. Smith said they were told a clerk took the watches from a display case and placed them on the counter.

It Isn't Easy to Buy Dynamite in State

Dynamite or other explosives such as used in bombing the English Avenue school early Monday morning are not easy to buy in Georgia any more, the state fire marshal said Monday afternoon.

"We tightened up the regulations after the Temple bombing in 1958," F. E. Robinson, the marshal, said. He outlined this procedure a user of dynamite must follow to buy the explosive:

The user applies to the tax commissioner or tax collector of his county or directly to the Fire Marshal's office for a permit to buy explosives. This form, in quadruplicate, shows the purchaser's name, his address, the use for which he intends the purchase, the amount of the purchase and the place it is going to be stored.

THUMBPRINT REQUIRED

The purchaser then must sign the application and imprint it with his thumbprint. He also must keep a monthly inventory of the amount of explosive he has on hand, how much he uses and for what purpose and how much he has left over at the end of the month. This information must be filed monthly with the Fire Marshal.

The dealer also must keep a running inventory of his supplies, filing copies with the Fire Marshal.

"There is no fee for such applications," Robinson said. "It's some trouble for a legitimate user, but everyone has to make such application before buying explosives in Georgia."

OTHER STATES LENIENT

Fire Marshal Robinson said that Georgia's neighboring states had no such stringent regulations that he knew of. "Some one could buy the dynamite out of state and bring it here," he said.

Such transportation—if the dynamite is intended for use in bombing a school, house of worship or certain other types of buildings—violates the 1960 Civil Rights Act which makes a federal offense of such transportation.

Charles E. Weeks, agent in charge of the Atlanta office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said the Monday morning bombing "appears to be a borderline case. Our agents are working in liaison with the police to determine as nearly as possible the circumstances of the explosion."

Georgia's regulations were tightened up, Robinson said, after the bombing of the Temple in 1958. After the bombing a reporter for The Atlanta Constitution went out and bought dynamite with no questions asked by the dealer. This condition was brought to the attention of the Fire Marshal's office and new regulations were put into effect.

Summit Talk Futile, Says Talmadge

Sen. Talmadge told members of a Knights of Columbus group here Monday night that the Eisenhower-Khrushchev talks on world peace reminded him "of Bishop (Fulton J.) Sheen sitting down with Al Capone to talk ethics."

Talmadge used the illustration in presenting his views on disarmament before the Father Thomas O'Reilly Council No. 4338, Knights of Columbus.

NO FUTURE

Talmadge said he did not see any future in disarmament talks. He said that, in his opinion, there wouldn't be a nuclear war unless it came from China or happened by accident.

He said the fear of "mutual suicide" has thus far deterred nuclear war and is more than likely to do so in the future.

Instead, he predicted, global conflicts would continue to be fought with the small "Korean-type wars." Therefore, we must continue to strengthen our armed forces, he asserted.

COST A LOT

"It will cost a lot," he said, "but that is the price of life itself."

Talmadge also attacked indiscriminate foreign aid. He said that such foreign aid had "degenerated into a global WPA" which is losing us more friends than it is gaining us.

Car Kills Worker On S. Expressway

A city construction department employee was hit by a station wagon and killed Monday on the South Expressway.

John Arthur McClain, 21, of McDonough, was spreading sand on newly poured tar on the South Expressway south of the Pryor Road bridge. Patrolman R. H. Anderson said.

McClain was pronounced dead at the scene, of 1962.

Anderson said the construction crew was pouring tar in cracks in the pavement and covering the tar with sand.

The death broke a period of 20 days without a traffic fatality in Atlanta.

Anderson said Sands told him he was lighting a cigaret while driving south on the expressway at approximately 40 miles per hour and did not see the truck or construction department crew until after the crash.

Sands was charged with following too close-accident and manslaughter, Anderson said. Hear-

Cadillac

World's easiest way to say "Quality"!

There is one word that is instantly recognized and understood in every land.

The word is "Cadillac"—and the meaning, of course, is "quality."

And it is understandable, we think, that Cadillac should have become a part of the universal vocabulary.

For its devotion to excellence has been of such a degree—and of such a tenure—that the car has become the world-wide symbol of everything that is good and desirable in a manufactured product. This truth has never been better expressed than it is in the current Cadillac.

Inspiring to look at, to drive and to own—it is truly the master achievement of motordom's master builders.

And Cadillac has imposed on its construction the most rigid standards and restrictions ever placed over the assembly of a motor car.

More than fourteen hundred separate inspections now guard the quality and goodness of every Cadillac—and the results of this crusade for perfection can be seen ... and felt ... and sensed.

Don't you owe yourself a personal appraisal of this 1961 "car of cars"?

Your Cadillac dealer will provide the car and the keys for a demonstration at any time.

We know you'll agree that it says "quality" with an eloquence all its own.

in Algeria if it is supervised by the United Nations—not by France as De Gaulle proposes.

Declaring that "the French colonialists kill, massacre, torture and pillage," Abbas asserted any Moslem regime set up in Algeria, as De Gaulle foresees, would be only a French puppet.

Abbas sent a protest to the United Nations over the killing of Moslem demonstrators in Algeria, asking urgent measures to end "new acts of extermination."

While De Gaulle was greeted warmly by most Moslems in the countryside, those in Algiers—for the first time came out waving the green and white flag of Abbas' national rebellion.

The teeming, smelly cashab of Algiers was the Moslem headquarters. The Moslems made two serious attempts to march out but were turned back by gunfire. At least eight Moslems were killed. Inside the quarter, the Moslems rampaged almost uncontrolled until powerful police patrols moved in. They scattered the Moslems and ripped down their nationalist flags.

Disorders spread to the worker districts of Belcourt and Bab-el-Oued, where Moslems and Europeans live side by side.

Officials placed the known death toll at 84 dead in Algiers and six in Oran. Six of the dead were Europeans, the remainder Moslems. Some estimates of the wounded—from minor bruises to serious gunshot wounds—ranged as high as 1,500 for the four days of violence.

The Algiers radio carried appeals for medical students to report to hospitals to handle the stream of injured.

The measure of calm that came to Algiers late in the day was as brittle as glass. The Moslem quarter still seethed with the high pitched, "you, you, you"—the battle cry of the Algerians. Nationalist groups in the cashab still waved the flag of the nationalist rebellion.

Hospital Gets Gifts On 'M-Day'

Milledgeville, and Charles A. Cowan of Cartersville, chairman for the second annual "M-Day."

Mrs. Vandiver and the GMA members were thanked for their work by Carl E. Pruett of Griffin, association president.

Milledgeville authorities and GMA officials said additional gifts will be arriving at the state hospital throughout the week in order that every Milledgeville patient will have a gift at Christmas.

The thousands of gifts piled on the Christmas-tree-flanked stage will be delivered to patients on Christmas Eve or Christmas Day, said hospital personnel.

All gifts bearing the name of a patient will be delivered to that individual. Other gifts will be given to others who would not otherwise receive gifts.

Each gift bore a notation—"men's sox, size 12"; talcum for a woman," or "handkerchiefs for a man." Some gifts were richly wrapped—others indicated they had been wrapped with more love than skill.

Patients in all the wards at Milledgeville knew Christmas had started to arrive on Monday. As guests toured the hospital, a little old colored woman kept rocking in front of a bright Christmas tree already trimmed in the Du-Pree Building.

Another very old woman wearing a brightly striped stocking cap called out, "It's a merry Christmas, 'cause Santa's coming this year!"

Howard Spires, an independent candidate who was only token opposition.

NO VOTING IRREGULARITIES? Before the election, a reporter suggested to a critic of the "court-house crowd" that there might not be any voting irregularities because there were no real contests.

"Don't worry," the critic said, "there'll be plenty."

And sure enough, there were plenty of irregularities. And The Constitution, through official state records and with the help of many local citizens, was in a position to confirm and to report them.

Some rural residents of Telfair County appear to be ignorant as to application of Georgia voting laws.

NEVER REGISTERED

Several persons, interviewed by a reporter, said they had never registered to vote. "They keep you registered down at the court-house," one of them said.

Several also said they had voted in the general election, but when questioned further said they did not go to the polls.

When asked how they did this, they said they requested relatives to vote for them. And they saw nothing wrong in this practice. Records showed they were recorded as having voted.

Some of the more intelligent voters also are ignorant of the laws or just ignore them. For example, one Telfair voter who is college-educated asked a reporter if it wasn't "customary" for counties to allow voters to cast their relative's ballots as well as their own. He and his wife were listed as having voted in the general election, but a poll watcher said the man did not go to the polls. And the man declined to comment when asked if his wife voted for him.

The reporter also heard complaints from several rural residents who said they feared they would lose their welfare checks if the signed statements acknowledging that they had not been to the polls on election day. Their names appeared on the list of persons who were supposed to have voted.

Several Dodge County residents said that the "court-house crowd" had tried to get them to vote in Telfair County, but that they had refused.

"It's agin the rules," said one Dodge County man, "and I told 'em I don't vote nowhere but Dodge."

This man's two sons live with him in Dodge County, but both were listed as having voted in Telfair. "They didn't vote in Telfair," the man said, "they voted in Dodge."

VOTED FOR HER

A woman in Dodge County, who was listed as voting in Telfair, said she hadn't voted at all "because nobody came by to ride me to that polling place. But I guess somebody voted for me because I told some of 'em that passed by here to tell that fellow that runs the polling place to let one of 'em vote for me."

Some lifelong residents of Dodge County have been voting in Telfair County.

And one woman who moved from Telfair to Dodge explained that she continued to vote in Telfair elections "because I like voting there better."

Rusk Is No Stranger To Tough Tasks

By HUNTER JAMES

In 1931 Dean Rusk's intellectual achievement as an undergraduate and his ideas about world peace won him a Rhodes Scholarship at Oxford University.

Those ideas have been severely tested over the years. And now, as top man in the U.S. State Department, Rusk will get his toughest test of all.

It won't be the first time he has faced a tough situation. The Georgia-born diplomat was assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs when the Korean War broke out.

POLICY IN ORIENT

He became known at that time as chief architect of U.S. policy in the Orient. Since 1952, he has been president of the Rockefeller Foundation in New York.

Rusk, 51, tall, hefty and balding, is a scholar, athlete and family man. He lives with his wife and three children in Scarsdale, New York.

He was born David Dean Rusk, February 9, 1909, in Cherokee County, one of five children. He lived in Atlanta from the time he was 4 years old until his graduation from Boys High School.

ENROLLED AT DAVIDSON

In 1925, he enrolled at Davidson College in North Carolina. He quickly climbed to the top in scholarship. He was inducted into the Phi Beta Kappa honor society.

Then came his Rhodes Scholarship. He spent two years at St. John's College, Oxford, receiving an M.S. degree. The next year he spent a semester at the University of Berlin.

In Berlin he earned an M.A. degree and saw first hand the rise of the Nazis.

NOT SURPRISED

Rusk's family wasn't much surprised by his achievements. Miss Margaret Rusk, who still lives in Atlanta, said Monday that her brother had always been studious and had always had a sharp mind.

Parks Rusk, Dean's brother who now lives at Miami Beach, said that while at Boys High "Dean always debated in favor of the old League of Nations... he was an early believer in the need for a United Nations."

Other members of the Rusk family are Roger Rusk, a physics professor at the University of Tennessee, and Mrs. Helen Perkins of Nashville, Tenn.

"He would read anything he could get his hands on when he was a boy," Miss Rusk said, "and a little later he became interested in history. He was always reading books about ancient history."

Dean was voted the best-all-around student in Atlanta high schools.

A little later he began to talk politics. "He had a lot of ideas about 'peaceful' affairs," Miss Rusk said. "I think that's how he got his Rhodes Scholarship."

TAUGHT AT COLLEGE

After he had finished his European studies, Rusk became an associate professor of government and dean of faculty at Miss College in Oakland, Calif. It was during these years that he met and married Miss Virginia Foisie.

He also managed to study a little law at the University of California.

He joined the army in late 1940 as a captain in the infantry reserve. When war came, he served in the military intelligence service in the China-Burma-India theater.

He left the army with the rank of colonel and was awarded the Legion of Merit with oak leaf cluster.

After the war, he became assistant chief of the Division of International Security Affairs in the State Department and worked his way up.

In 1946, he became a special assistant to Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson.

The next year he was appointed director of the Office of United Nations Affairs in the State Department.

President Truman nominated Rusk for promotion to assistant secretary of state in 1949 and, in 1950, the diplomat took over the bureau for Far Eastern Affairs.

That's where he made his niche. He had studied the art of making peace in the world, but he knew how to be tough, too—he was in favor of giving American aid to guerrillas who, at that time, were resisting communism on the Chinese mainland. He was firmly against diplomatic recognition of Red China.

Rusk is the second Georgian to become secretary of state. The first was John Forsyth, who served under Andrew Jackson and Martin Van Buren.

Capt. C. C. Hamby said he received a call to Terminal Station. He said the manager asked, in his presence for the students to leave.

The request was repeated, Hamby said, and the four replied: "We want steaks."

Hamby said he informed the group that he would have to place them under arrest unless they complied with the request to leave and they still refused.

five years of State Department service in the Truman administration. From 1947 to 1952, he successfully served as assistant secretary of state for U.N. affairs, deputy undersecretary of state, and assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs in which he played a key role in the final negotiations of a peace treaty with Japan.

WAS AD EXECUTIVE

Rep. Bowles did not seek reelection this year in order to devote all his time to the Kennedy campaign. A retired advertising executive, he also had served as governor of Connecticut, ambassador to India, and assistant secretary of state for economic affairs.

Stevenson, also a strong contender for the top foreign policy post, had deferred his acceptance of the U.N. assignment until he learned the identity of the secretary of state under whom he would serve. Kennedy said both he and Rusk had talked to Stevenson by telephone Sunday night and had reached "an understanding of the relationship which would exist between the ambassador to the United Nations, the secretary of state and the President, which was acceptable and satisfactory to us all."

IN AGREEMENT

Asked to define this relationship more precisely, Kennedy said:

"I think that Gov. Stevenson was anxious, as I said the other day, that the mission of the United Nations would be strengthened in personnel, that the United States and its responsibilities would be an important part of the foreign policy of the United States. These were all matters in which Mr. Rusk and I and Gov. Stevenson were in agreement, and I believe Gov. Stevenson after he talked to Mr. Rusk and after I talked to him, was happy to accept."

The Rusk selection ended one chapter in Washington's biggest guessing game—the speculation about the make-up for the new cabinet. There had been many rumors about the probable secretary of state, with the front-running position given at one time to Sen. J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, and, at another time, to David K. E. Bruce, a career diplomat.

But the guessing continues about the other two members of the "big three" cabinet positions—the secretaries of defense and treasury—and the four other regular cabinet posts still to be filled. They are attorney general, postmaster general, and secretaries of labor and agriculture. The other cabinet members already named are Gov. Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut as secretary of health, education and welfare, and Gov. Luther H. Hodges of North Carolina as secretary of commerce.

Before flying back to Washington Monday night, Kennedy told newsmen he would make another cabinet appointment "by Wednesday or before."

Kennedy said the appointment of Rusk brought "to this high office the long view of the student of world affairs, the concern for peace shared by all those who have known war at first hand, and a practical working experience in the conduct of our foreign relations."

FOR FREEDOM

The President-elect added this observation:

"It is my hope that in the coming years the foreign policy of the United States will be identified in the minds of the people of the world as a policy that is not merely anti-Communist, but is rather for freedom, that seeks not merely to build strength in a power struggle, but is concerned with the struggle against hunger, disease and illiteracy, the struggle that looms so large in the minds and the lives of the people in the southern half of the globe. The goals of this nation are goals of all people everywhere: peace, freedom and the pursuit of the just life. It will be our objective to bring these goals within the world's reach."

HELP TAKE HOLD

Accepting the appointment, Rusk pledged himself to the campaign promises of the incoming administration in the discharge of foreign policy.

"Senator Kennedy has called upon all of us to help him take hold of the great problems which now face us in the world about us," Rusk said. "We are in a period of rapid and revolutionary change, as peoples in many parts of the world are striking out on new courses for themselves.

"But America at its best can be a confident America, and we need not be afraid of changes which arise out of hopes and aspirations which we, ourselves, share with other peoples in many parts of the world. This great country of ours is not like the cork that is tossed on the waves over which we have no control. Our enormous capacity to act imposes upon us a responsibility to make history, and to take a large part in the shaping of events."

Beating their opponents in a part-score battle on today's hand gave Mrs. Barbara Kachmar, of Bronxville, Mrs. Roberta Erde and Mrs. Howard Schenken, both of New York, and Mrs. Sally Johnson, of Westport, Conn., one of the good results which brought them first place in the recent national women's team championship.

Board-a-match scoring was used in the three-session event, which drew a record entry of 64 teams, and the New York group won the board by 60 points.

At the first table, sitting East-West, Mrs. Erde and Mrs. Kachmar doubled South at one spade and set her one trick, vulnerable, for 200 points.

When the hand was replayed, Mrs. Schenken and Mrs. Johnson, North-South, were also doubled at one spade, but West took out the double and East got the contract at three hearts, which was made for a score of only 140 points.

Mrs. Erde opened the bidding with one heart as shown in the box, and when South's one-spade overcall was passed around to her she reopened the bidding with a takeout double. Her partner, however, converted it to a penalty double by passing, even though seven tricks were needed to defeat the contract. The two women then stopped the one-bid by refusing to open up the club suit for South, forcing her to give up three tricks in the suit for down one.

West opened the jack of hearts and East let South win it with the king. South continued a heart, and East overtook her partner's high card with the queen and sent back the 9 of spades, South going in with the ace and ruffing her remaining heart with dummy's last spade.

Declarer next played the ace and another diamond, and East won and led a fourth round of hearts. South ruffed with the spade 10, and West overruffed with the queen. West's next lead was the eight of spades, and declarer took it with the jack and led the jack of clubs, permitting West to win with the king and continue a club through dummy's queen, giving her partner the ace-9.

Now East led a red card, and South trumped with the king of spades and conceded the last trick to West's spade 7. South went down one trick at one spade, doubled, losing a heart and a heart overruff, a diamond, three clubs and one spade.

This was the bidding at the second table:

East	Mrs. Johnson	South	West	Mrs. Schenken	North
1♥	1♠	Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass
Dbl.	Pass	2♥	Pass	Pass	Pass
3♥	Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass

East made her three-heart contract, losing one trick in each suit for 140 points, but it wasn't enough to win the board.

GOOD HEALTH: Let's Make Life as Good as Possible

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: About a year ago I had a physical examination: Blood pressure low, but that's a help, not a hindrance to me. Cholesterol too high, and hardening of the arteries had started. I was told to reduce 35 pounds, down to 150. I feel fairly good, although I suffer from dizzy spells that I think are due to the low blood pressure. From time to time I wonder about the hardening of the arteries. As this progresses, what signs of trouble should I look for? I am 57 years old.—Mrs. C. W. A.

Madam, I don't know that I feel like dredging up things for you to worry about.

For a woman of 57, you sound as though you are probably about average, when you consider everything. Blood pressure low, but cholesterol high; arteries hardening some, but no unfavorable results. Weight obviously too high, but I assume you followed orders and got rid of some of the excess.

There's no way of predicting when, or even whether, hardened arteries are going to cause any trouble. Some people are never bothered by them.

For remember this, hardening of the arteries is something that comes to all of us, naturally — just as our skin texture changes and our hair gets grayer and we need glasses to read the fine print in the telephone book and we decide to go home at a sensible hour instead of staying at a party until dawn.

You are wise to reduce your weight — and keep it down. If your arteries are harder than they used to be, it's not smart to put needless strain on them by being overweight. But don't spend your time waiting for disaster to overtake you. I hate to be a killjoy but maybe your arteries never will bother you.

At the age of 15 or at 51, we grow one day older every 24 hours. No more; no less. So instead of fussing about the way life is, let's just decide to make life as good as we can at any age. That's the sensible attitude.

Let's not rail against the fact that arteries harden. Let's just keep our weight normal and get reasonable exercise and have periodic physical examination. And when we've done what we can to stay healthy, let's for Pete's sake quit worrying and looking for trouble.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, Tuesday, Dec. 13, 1960 13

To add two other quick points: Light-headedness may very well be due to low blood pressure. This frequently improves with weight reduction. And as for cholesterol levels (something we don't wholly understand anyway) they can in most instances be reduced by weight reduction or by other measures, mainly diet. Your doctor can figure out the best means for you.

I have been told I have pruritis, which doesn't bother me except for the itching. Is there some cure for this?—J. D.

I hate to give away trade secrets — but pruritis is the technical term for itching; hence look for the cause.

brick building, shattering windows. It also damaged doors and walls inside the building.

Capt. Richard M. Barb, of the 547th Ordnance Detachment of Ft. McPherson, headed a demolition team that picked up items at the scene which are to be tested at the Third Army and FBI laboratories in an effort to identify the type of explosive used.

Police would not comment on the explosive used, but a general feeling persisted that it was a liquid-type, such as nitro-glycerine, instead of dynamite. One officer said nothing was found in the foot-deep crater, three feet in diameter, dug in the street beside the curbing.

CHARGE FALLS SHORT
Evidently the explosive was hurled at an entrance of the school on the Peyton Street side, Little said. Police were inclined to believe the charge fell short of the entrance instead of striking the door facing and bouncing back into the street.

Investigators also were working on the theory that the explosive was hurled by a person standing on the ground instead of someone passing in a car.

Little said the investigation was not confined strictly to Atlanta. He intimated that the person or persons involved could have come from elsewhere in the state or a neighboring state.

POLICE MOVING WARILY
Police were moving warily in the case, which in some respects was reminiscent of the Temple bombing of two years ago.

Chief Herbert Jenkins said very little was found at the scene which might contribute to a solution. However, he said it was very likely that a solution would come from other sources.

The school itself was not an issue, police pointed out. An elderly, retired man and his wife—who reside a block from the school and who are the only white persons in the area—summed it up:

"It just doesn't make sense. There's been no trouble here."

Investigators noted mounting tension here in recent weeks. A prayer service was held Sunday morning at Herndon Stadium in sympathy with sit-in demonstrations by Negro college students.

Negro pickets have marched in front of several downtown stores and on two occasions robed Ku Klux Klansmen have paraded in downtown sections.

Police said damage would have been much greater had the charge gone through the doorway or exploded at the doorway.

RESIDENTS AWAKENED
Little said some residents of the area were awakened by the blast, but dismissed it as a sonic boom from a jet airplane breaking the sound barrier, and went back to sleep. Others ran outside in night clothes to investigate.

The force of the blast stripped foliage from an evergreen tree at the entrance. Slivers of glass from broken windows were driven into walls like arrows. Window shades were shredded. Venetian blinds were ripped apart. Window latches were ripped away.

In homes nearby, windows were broken and pictures jarred from the walls. In some instances walls were cracked.

The blast ripped a strip of chrome from the fender of an auto parked 45 feet away.

Ike Appoints Envoy To 3 Africa Nations
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower Monday gave a recess appointment to W. Wendell Blancke as U.S. ambassador to three newly independent African nations—Gabon Republic, the Republic of Chad, and the Central African Republic.

Blancke, now ambassador to the Republic of Congo (Brazzaville), is a career Foreign Service officer from San Leandro, Calif. He is 52.

The nations to which he will be U. S. envoy all are former French colonies.

will again give us a black eye throughout the world and give aid to our enemies," he commented.

"I hope the perpetrators will be brought to a speedy justice," he said.

OUTRAGES HURT CAUSE
Rep. Charlie Pannell of Murray County said "any intelligent person is certainly against such outrages. They're hurting the cause they're fighting for more than anything else they can possibly do."

The Rev. William Holmes Borders, Negro leader supporting student sit-in demonstrations, expressed sorrow over the blast but said he did not think it was connected with Negro efforts to desegregate downtown lunch counters.

DEMOGOGUES ATTACKED
Hartsfield issued a statement declaring:

"Most of these racial demonstrators come from outside our city limits. They are what we call the 'outhouse crowd.' Such senseless destruction of property is the work of the lowest element, an ignorant rabble, inflamed by political demagogues and encouraged by the silence of most of our substantial civic leaders."

"... Practically all of the rabble-rousing, cross-burning, sheet-flapping and dynamiting is done by people who do not live inside the limits of Atlanta..."

"Atlanta has a good reputation for race relations, and they desire to destroy it. We have been told that in the near future there will be efforts to bring into Atlanta the professional rabble-rousers and the lowest element to make trouble and try to embarrass our city..."

"They are going to intimidate neither the government of Atlanta nor its good citizenship."

"... It is time for the substantial citizens of Atlanta—the people who own its great stores, office buildings, plants and factories—to assert themselves. Otherwise a few little loud-mouthed racial demagogues will be mistaken for the voice of Atlanta."

Georgia's Mayors Back All-Out Road Program

prosperity, and in some instances to their survival," the resolution said.

The GMA resolution asked that any bond funds "be expended on a fair and equal basis" with as much consideration being given roads within corporate limits of cities and towns as outside municipalities.

The GMA directors thus became the second politically potent group of local-government officials to call for a major road repair program, which is likely to be among the principal items considered by the upcoming Legislature.

The board of managers of the Association of County Commissioners of Georgia passed a resolution last Friday urging Gov. Vandiver and the State Highway Board to "embark on a bold, long-range and economically feasible plan" to improve existing highways.

State Highway Director Jim Gillis and other administration leaders said in mid-November that the Legislature would be asked to consider a bill authorizing a $75-to-$100 million-dollar bond issue for road maintenance.

The GMA passed their resolution in a brief business session at Milledgeville Monday after Georgia mayors had delivered Christmas gifts to patients at the State Mental Hospital in the second annual "M-Day" program.

Pruitt said the directors acted because roads "are in such deplorable shape in many sections of the state."

"In one sense, this could be called a crash program to get all of our highways back in good condition," he added.

The action amounts to "a unanimous vote of confidence for the governor's proposal," Pruett added.

In the event the Legislature goes along with the program, the bonds would be issued by a state authority and would be retired in 30 years.

2 Nations Quitting U.N.'s Congo Force

By LINDESAY PARROTT

(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.)

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—Morocco and Guinea announced Monday that they had decided to withdraw their troops from the United Nations force in the Congo.

Guinea made known her intention in a message to U.N. from Conakry, her capital. She announced that her soldiers would take no further part in the Congo operations.

Messages from Rabat indicated that Morocco was ready to follow suit.

The Guinean action was made known in a cablegram from President Sekou Touré of Guinea to Valerian A. Zorin of the Soviet Union, president of the Security Council this month. Touré's message denounced the actions of the U.N. command in the Congo as contrary to the charter.

Guinea had about four companies of soldiers in the Congo—roughly 400 men.

Guinea asked the council to see to the repatriation of her troops "without delay."

TRANSPORTATION NEEDED

Precisely how contingents in the Congo whose governments wished to bring them home would be transported was a problem that was being given at least some preliminary consideration by delegations here.

Many of the troops were flown to Africa in United States transports and the U.S. indicated that it would cancel its bill for the service to the U.N. It has not, however, volunteered to fly the troops home again.

SOVIET BARRING HELP

In another development, the Soviet Union, which has worked closely with some Asian and African powers favoring the restoration of deposed and arrested Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba, threatened to withhold all financial support from the U.N. efforts.

Alexei A. Roschin, speaking in the Assembly's Budgetary Committee Monday afternoon, asserted the Soviet Union would not be "forced" to contribute to a U.N. operation that it has condemned.

Britain Prods U.S. On Seat for China

By DREW MIDDLETON

(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.)

LONDON—The British government hopes to discuss the admission of Communist China to the United Nations with the new American administration.

Joseph B. Godber, undersecretary for foreign affairs, made it clear to the House of Commons Monday that the British view is "we think she (Communist China) should be in."

The government doesn't know what the policy of Sen. Kennedy's administration will be, he said, but "we hope to discuss this question with them at an early stage."

LEAVES NO DOUBT

The government spokesman left no doubt as to Britain's view. This is that every government in clear control of its territory should be admitted to the United Nations and a country as large as "the People's Republic of China" than out of it.

This didn't mean, he emphasized, that China or any other country had a prescriptive right to membership. "I say simply that, as a practical matter, we think she should be in."

MOTION FAILS

Godber's admission of the government's readiness to raise the issue with the United States proved decisive in the rejection of a motion censuring the government's policy on Peiping's entry into the United Nations.

A private member's motion put down by Desmond Donnelly, Labor M.P., was defeated by 259 to 177. But the debate demonstrated the strength of the support on both conservative and labor benches for China's admission to the United Nations at the earliest possible moment.

Donnelly had demanded that the government make admission of China the first item of its first conference with the new administration. Godber went a long way toward accepting this demand.

Kennedy Won N.Y. by 383,666

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Democrat John F. Kennedy won New York State's 45 electoral votes by an official margin of 383,666 popular votes over Republican Richard M. Nixon, the State Board of Canvasses reported Monday.

The board reported a record 7,380,075 persons voted, with Kennedy polling 3,830,085 Democratic with 3,446,419 for Nixon.

There were scattered votes for minority party candidates and some void ballots.

Police Give Stork A Boost 4 Times

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (UPI)—Police Monday had to give the stork a hand four times.

There were at least four emergency calls from expectant mothers. Three made it to the hospital in time but another gave birth to a child at her doctor's office.

After the fourth call, a policeman quipped, "I think it must be an epidemic."

Reapportioning Seen Passing

Dougherty County legislator predicted Monday that legislation reapportioning representation in the Georgia General Assembly, in view of the 1960 census, will be introduced and passed.

"I'm certain that a bill will be offered at this or the next session," Rep. George D. Busbee of Albany said.

Busbee did not comment, however, on whether such legislation would include more representation for the more populous metropolitan counties.

Dougherty is one of several counties which will gain seats in the House of Representatives because of population gains. Dougherty, which now has two representatives is entitled to three under the census figures.

Under the Georgia Constitution, the eight largest counties in the state have three House members, the next 30 largest have two and the remainder have one. Dougherty, with a population of 75,680, replaces Floyd as the eighth largest county.

Busbee pointed out that the state constitution requires that this apportionment "shall be changed by the General Assembly at its first session after each census."

Busbee also said that if reapportionment is not acted on by the Legislature, "someone will take it into the court."

Alarm Is Mistaken; Trailer Burns Down

BARRE, Miss. (UPI)—The trailer home of Mr. and Mrs. Eden Dirkey and their two children burned to the ground Monday before volunteer firemen realized for whom the bell tolled.

Firefighters at first assumed the alarm bell they heard was signaling the closing of school because of the snowstorm. They finally arrived in time to join the Dickey family in watching flames consume the last of their trailer. No one was injured.

Skelton Resting After Surgery

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Comedian Red Skelton underwent surgery Monday at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital for a ruptured diaphragm and was reported in good condition.

After three hours in the operating room, the red-haired TV star was taken to a recovery room where doctors said, "He is resting comfortably and the operation was a success."

He added that the 47-year-old Skelton may have suffered the hernia as a result of the many falls he has taken in his years as a comedian.

Price Is Put On Nazi's Head

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—The state prosecutor's office announced Monday it will pay a 10,000-mark—$2,380—reward for the capture of the last commandant of Auschwitz concentration camp.

A spokesman said former Col. Richard Baer, 49, who headed the camp from 1944, probably is in hiding and not dead as had been presumed. He is wanted for a trial being prepared here for men who had been at Auschwitz, scene of the death of thousands of Jews in gas chambers.

"President Eisenhower and President-elect Kennedy meet in a friendly atmosphere and hold three-hour discussion."—News item.

No doubt most of us like the way . . . They do things in the U.S.A. . . . Where two men battle, hand to hand . . . For the great office of the land . . . They get together and debate . . . The atmosphere is filled with hate . . . They fight with a barrage of words . . . And call each other "dirty-birds."

But when the final votes are in . . . The loser takes it with a grin . . . And though he may be sick at heart . . . He is a sport and plays the part . . . The winner doesn't brag or boast . . . But, like a kind and cordial host . . . Invites the loser out to dine . . . And calls him, "this old friend of mine."

In other countries, when they vote . . . The winner cuts the loser's throat . . . Or stands him up against the wall . . . And blasts him with a cannon-bell . . . Unless the loser takes his flight . . . To some place on election-night.

We like it in the U.S.A. We like the kind and cordial way . . . Instead of being stabbed or shot . . . That is better, is it not?

Dixie Education Goals Shaping Up, SREB Told

Goals for higher education in the South are coming closer to definition, a Mississippi educator Monday told the Legislative Advisory Council of the Southern Regional Education Board.

Dr. J. D. Williams, chancellor of the University of Mississippi, told the council of the organizational set-up and plans for the new Commission on Goals for Higher Education in the South which was named at the board's meeting in Hot Springs, Ark., last September.

The commission's organizational meeting will be held Feb. 13-14, 1961. Members of the seven-man commission are Boyd Campbell, Jackson, Miss., businessman; O. C. Carmichael, former chancellor of Vanderbilt University; Leroy Collins, retiring governor of Florida; Colgate W. Darden Jr., former governor of Virginia and former president of the University of Virginia; Marion B. Folsom, former secretary of health, education and welfare; H. H. Dewar, investment banker of San Antonio, and Ralph McGill, publisher of The Atlanta Constitution.

The council also agreed that Tampa, Fla., would be the site of their 1961 Legislative Work Conference to be held in August or September of 1961.

The main topic for the conference would be the question of goals for higher education, the council decided.

George Payne Cossar, Mississippi state representative, discussed the present state of mental health training in the 16 states which by compact support the board. He said that one of the biggest problems was the search for adequately trained personnel and that even with an all-out effort on the part of the states, it would be 10 to 15 years before any training program in the states would begin bearing fruit.

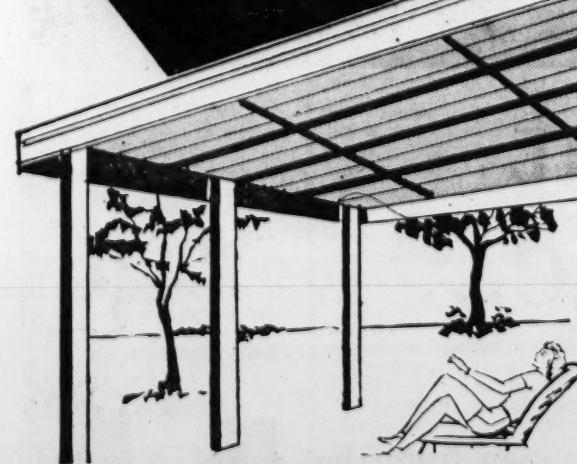

Cossar and Dr. William Hurter of the board's staff suggested the problem of the mentally ill program for patients after release from mental hospitals as a subject for discussion at the next legislative work conference.

Investing Saves City a Tax Rise

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Returns from investment of unused city funds insure no tax rise for Atlantans for 1961, aldermanic finance committee chairman John A. White said Monday.

Speaking to a joint meeting of his committee, the city personnel board and the budget commission, he said investments will add an estimated $700,000 to the city treasury.

The 9-mill tax levy for general city operations and the 3½-mill tax for debt service will remain unchanged for the new year, he asserted.

"Atlanta stands at the very top among other cities of the nation in its fiscal operations," White told the joint session. "I know of no other city in the country or Canada with a comparable record."

White said the bond sinking fund from which cost of retiring bonds is taken will get a boost of more than $700,000 for the year from reinvestment of unused portions of bond funds and from a premium of some $155,000 received when the last $12,725,000 worth of bonds from the $52 million issued in 1957 were sold.

White estimated the 1960 cash carryover at $3.5 million compared to $3,040,167, last year when all previous records were broken. The joint session Monday gave changes in the pay range for employees, 54 reclassifications for city workers, and 177 for new personnel.

White said the changes plus longevity pay for 1,322 workers, and automatic pay increases for 1,872 workers will cost $860,000 for the new year.

Hearing for Rev. King Is Delayed

The filing of a new appeal by Negro integration leader Martin Luther King Jr. of a DeKalb County probation revocation has delayed until February a hearing of his case by the State Court of Appeals.

The court, in an order signed by Justice J. M. C. Townsend, John E. Frankum, Ira Carlisle and Robert Jordan, pointed out that "another writ of error growing out of this case will be filed in time to reach the February, 1961, call."

The court had been scheduled in January to take up a review of a 12-month sentence King received in the DeKalb Civil and Criminal Court on Sept. 23 on a charge of no drivers' license. King contended the sentence was illegal because it exceeded statutory limits.

The husky watch that went to the Antarctic...

(and came back slimmer... trimmer)

This watch went to the Antarctic with the U. S. Navy, on Operation Deepfreeze. Now men from the rugged Rockies to the steaming Everglades want it for Christmas in the new slim version—Antarctic III. Just as husky and even more handsome! Special self-wind component keeps time evenly, accurately. New "weather-watcher" licks jolting climate changes—100° above to 40° below—searing-dry to dripping-wet. "Floating construction" shrugs off even violent shocks. In fact, Antarctic III is so tough, it's guaranteed for 3 full years.* Styles for women too. See it—give it—or buy it for yourself—now! $69.50 up.

Atlanta's Teachers Back Sibley Report

By HERMAN HANCOCK

A resolution supporting the Sibley Report on schools was adopted Monday by the Atlanta Public School Teachers Association.

The association called on the Fulton and DeKalb delegations to the General Assembly to work for activation of the Sibley Report, which suggested public option as a solution in the school integration crisis.

The motion was made by Roger Derthick, president of the association and principal of Henry Grady High School. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

ACTIONS PAVE WAY

Derthick pointed out that the organization about two years ago adopted resolutions pledging support to the Atlanta Board of Education in the impending crisis. He said that no further action had been taken because none had been called for, but that recent developments in which other organizations have acted, paved the way for the new stand Monday.

Some 300 of the 1,974 members of the teachers' organization attended the meeting at Bass High School Monday.

TEXT OF MOTION

Following is the motion, adopted without dissent:

"Having served and dedicated its best efforts to the children and citizens of Atlanta for more than 50 years, the Atlanta Public School Teachers Association reaffirms its faith and belief in the great democratic idea of a public school system. As a means for continuing such a public school system, the Atlanta Public School Teachers Association urges the implementation of the majority report of the Sibley committee.

"I further move that copies of this motion be sent to the Fulton and DeKalb delegations calling upon said delegations to urge ac-

Atlanta Board Wishes Teachers Happy Yule with $1.9 Million Pay

The Atlanta Board of Education Monday night voted to release $1.9 million in school salaries by Dec. 21 so employees will have more holiday spending money.

Christmas holidays will begin Dec. 21 for more than 106,000 school students and school employees. They will return to their desks Tuesday, Jan. 3.

ACTION ON PAY DEFERRED

The board also:

1. Deferred action on a proposal to provide incentive pay for members of the instructional staffs holding T-6 state certificates, signifying they have done work in excess of a master's degree, but have not yet received their doctorates. The board voted leaves with full pay for teachers lacking only one semester of completing work on their doctor's degrees, but limiting the number of teachers to not more than four at a time.

Action on the pay hikes, around $35 a month average, was delayed to permit teacher committees to study the proposal. A teacher getting a semester of pay to complete work on a doctor's degree must agree to serve in the Atlanta system for two years after getting the degree. Those getting doctor's degrees would get about $50 extra unless they served as superintendent, assistant or area superintendents.

2. Set up $6,000 from 1957 bond funds to pave a parking area at Bass High School, despite a warning by Glenn Frick that the procedure could be expensive as more and more schools demand the same treatment.

3. Urged an urban renewal project in an area bounded by Howell Street, Auburn Avenue, and Sampson and Houston streets, and agreed tentatively to provide $110,000 as the board's share of the of extending and improving the grounds of Howard (Negro) high School.

4. Voted $42,000 as architect's fees for remodeling the old Fulton County Health Building adjoining City Hall as a school administration building. Tucker & Howell will do the work.

OKED TRAVEL PAY

The group also approved the first increase in years in automobile allowances for officials and employees using their machines in city business. Those now allowed up to $50 monthly will get a $5 monthly hike and those getting above $50 will get an extra $10 a month under the recommendations.

Fulton Curbs Welfare to Cut Deficit

The Fulton County Welfare Board voted to tighten up policies on general assistance to families Monday night after the administrator reported the department spent $27,000 more than was budgeted for the year.

Administrator Wellborn Ellis told members of the board at a monthly meeting in the Atlanta Athletic Club that the Welfare department was spending about $2,800 per month more than was anticipated because of rising economic pressures and unemployment in Fulton County.

A recent policy which set an arbitrary amount of income for general assistance according to the number of people in the family was reverted to a policy which set the amount of assistance according to a family budget made up by the department.

Ellis said the reversion would affect about 60 families.

Ellis said the number of applications for assistance has doubled since 1959.

Just Getting Older for Christmas? Here's How You Can Tell for Sure

It is never so much the relentless flitting of days and hours which bring home to the working woman the uncomfortable fact that she is getting on in years, but the dogged procession of "special days." Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter and the despised birthdays take their toll, but leave a reminder. She is not getting any younger any faster.

So, is everybody?

Nobody, not even the working girl, grows old simply by living a number of years. Some seem to be born old, yet others are young all their lives. To such as these youth is a gift they were born with—like blue eyes, or being a girl. Their youthfulness never deserts them if they are true to it.

But how can you tell—at 18 or 80—if you are getting old?

Years wrinkle the skin and brittle the bone, but it is the loss of hope and enthusiasm which wrinkle the soul and bow the head.

Worry, doubt, fear, despair, suspicion—these etch lines upon the countenance of any age and dull the youngest eye, for to be old is not a time of life. It is a state of the mind, a condition of the heart.

To be young is to be in touch with the universe. To be young is to find at any age, the wonder in a star, the eternal forward reach of the child for whatever happens next.

To be young is to be attuned to other human beings, to give of yourself to each of them and receive with gladness whatever comes back to you.

To be young is to hope; to be old is to doubt. To be young is to challenge; to be old is to fear. To be young is to think yourself worthy; to be old is to judge others by the meanness you see in yourself.

To be young is to thirst for adventure, to have a taste for tomorrow. To be young is to see beauty, to know joy, to have courage, to recognize grandeur, to experience love.

To have youth is to give and to receive.

But if all your wires are down, if your heart is encased by the snow of the pessimist and glazed with the ice of the cynic—then you are old and the world which once offered its all to you can offer you nothing and it is yours no longer.

Macaroni on Matchboxes? Yep, Those Symphony Gals Are Handy at Handicraft!

By YOLANDE GWIN

The women in the symphony group do a lot more than listen to music and go to concerts and afternoon teas.

They are handy with handicraft.

Evidence of this is now of current interest for the women, all members of the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra, have made all sorts of festive things for the Christmas season as well as for year-around use.

Mrs. O. W. Severance put her original and imaginative talents to work for gifts for the "Boutique" when Mrs. Mason Lowance suggested that the group make gifts of distinction with a personal touch.

"I enjoy making these things," said Mrs. Severance. "A lot of them are strictly for the holidays like the nut and cone tree, the cotton picking tree and the kissing bell. However, there are a lot of things such as the match boxes, the bracelets and the decorated ash trays which can be used at any time."

JEWEL MATCH BOX

Now there are match boxes, but you wouldn't ever suspect it as it is as gay and decorative as a jewel box used during the middle ages—heavy with golden jewels and fancy trimmings.

And surprise — all the so-called jewels and fancy work — were once elbow macaroni. One of the ingenious women in the group sprayed the macaroni with gold and danted the over all design with bright colored jewels.

There are fantasies of all sorts which the women are selling as a fund raising project. For those who prefer a miniature tree—the table type—one of the women has made one with an Empire touch. The pedestal base is velvet trimmed in gold braid and the tree is almost solid with its decorations of fruits and nuts all sprayed in gold with a top-coat of lacquer.

The tinkle of jingle bells is a must for Christmas. Now one can have a large ball—suitable for doorways, hallways or stairways—as gay and colorful as the Mardi Gras. Inside the ball is a tiny music box which plays its merry tune at the flip of a switch. In reality however it is a kissing ball.

Wire leads many lives. At this season of the year it has been twisted and turned to many as well as such decorative arts as unusual flower arrangements and bracelets."

And bracelets! No gypsy queen ever had the bracelets which are available through the Symphony's Boutique Gifts. The most fascinating are made of antique gold buttons.

shapes. Trees, wreaths, balls, angels, stars, lanterns, snowflakes, candle holders and baskets are just a few of its roles.

"We still have many fascinating things in the making," continued Mrs. Severance. "We have bed jackets, place mat holders, lingerie case holders,

SUGGESTIONS FOR SANTA

NEW YORK (UPI)—Memo to Santa's helpers:

"Don't stock up on toys capable of causing unnecessary accidents resulting in death, injury or disease."

The memo's from the accident prevention committee of the American Academy of Pediatrics.

The experts are concerned because the academy's file of tragic accidents—avoidable through the selection of safe toys—grows fatter every year around Christmas.

"In the guidance of the choice of toys, several important principles should be considered," the committee told United Press International.

"Children do not only love and become attached to toys, but will also tear, break, throw, mouth and bite them. They will also place small parts of toys into the nose, mouth or ears."

SHARP EDGES BANNED

The pediatricians urge the choice of toys which are sturdy and will not come apart easily. They ban toys with sharp edges.

"And if toys are made of plastic material," the committee said, "be sure that they are not flimsy and break into small bits which may be inserted into nose, mouth or ears."

"Toys which are made of cast iron are too heavy. The small child needs these like a hole in the head, which they are liable to give him."

The experts consider some stuffed toys objectionable because they become dirty and can carry harmful germs—but most of all because they can become allergenic and may cause eczema, hay fever and asthma in some children.

"Statistics have shown that about 10 per cent of the population is potentially allergic," the committee said. "If children prefer soft or cuddly toys, these should be made of orlon or terry cloth and stuffed with foam rubber."

"They should be furnished with a zipper so that the inside of the toy can be removed and the outside washed and sterilized periodically."

TOY DOLLARS STRETCHED

The experts also warn against trying to make your toy dollars stretch beyond the limits of safety.

"Ask yourselves whether the toys are made with flammable material," the committee said.

"Are they made of lead or painted with lead for possible candidates of lead poisoning? Are they so flimsy that they will fall apart soon?"

"Are they cheap because they don't meet standards of safety?"

But even safe toys can cause accidents. The committee said children should be trained—by example—to stow away their toys in their rightful places and not leave them scattered all over the room and stairs where they can cause serious falls.

Card Capers— Keep 'em!

(Let Sideways Thinking solve your problems! How? See? You've already got a brand-new problem—write to George, c/o The Atlanta Constitution, the only advice columnist in the business who has trouble answering his OWN questions.)

DEAR GEORGE:

I don't think the average American would ever care if he never saw another Christmas card. It's a bunch of malarkey, kept going by people who think it's good for business plus a bunch of people who are afraid not to send cards because people send them to them. And a lot of people who just do it "because it's the thing to do." Half the time we don't know who the cards are from.

I wish you would put in your column that it would be better if we all quit this foolishness and put the money we spend on cards into some fund for the needy, don't you agree with that?

AVERAGE AMERICAN.

DEAR AVERAGE AMERICAN: I sure don't. (I don't even agree there's an "average" American.) In all due respect to your good-hearted suggestion, I think there has been enough damper put on holiday fun now.

The group you left out includes the millions who enjoy sending and receiving cards. We need more sentiment, not less; less calculation, not more; more heart, less reason and Christmas is no time for logic—and neither is Halloween, etc.

Let's have other days to help the needy, and let's not confine it to what we would have spent on Christmas cards or trick-or-treating—but in the meantime, let's go for broke when the spirit hits. (I'm still mad about what they did to the office party.)

Sorry, Average American: But I take a back seat to no one in being average.

DEAR GEORGE:

You know everything. What's causing so many missile failures?

TAXPAYER.

DEAR TAXPAYER: Sorry, that is top secret information. But I'll give you one hint—they better start winding those rubber bands up tighter.

Music Group Hears Soloist

Solos by Atlanta's famous concert singer, Mrs. Beverly Wolff Diggins will highlight the Christmas program of the music division of the Atlanta Woman's Club on Wednesday Dec. 14 at noon at the clubhouse. Steve Worley Jr., will accompany Mrs. Diggins.

Also on the program will be piano selections by Mrs. E. W. Snead and a reading by Mrs. Paul Colson Harrison. The entire affair has been planned by Mrs. C. W. Youngsters of the Decatur Methodist Children's Home met Santa and his Sigma Nu fraternity and Kappa Delta sorority helpers at a recent party at the Emory Sigma Nu House on the Emory campus. Furs Pose Problem

PARIS—(WNS)—Where do you wear your fur?

In Paris this season the big question is not what kind of fur is it, how much did you pay nor who designed it.

Chicness is judged on where, where, where your fur is appearing in your winter wardrobe.

Fur coat? It's old hat unless it's double and reversible, one fur inside and t'other out.

In the evening? "Tres snob" is the new huge evening bag of precious fur, instead of a fur wrap.

Up, down or in the middle? Yes, anywhere and everywhere, borders.

But, above all, borders, borders.

The Grande Maison de Blanc calls its beige velvet hat with heavy sable border a "best seller."

Two styles seen frequently at smart cocktail affairs are the Russian tunic, bordered in fur, and the strapless sheath with fur border around the top.

Spotted fur is getting a big play at smart boutiques when used on huge handbags, umbrella handles and cases.

And the flat fur boots and handbag set are preferred by Parisiennes who want to prove that they are chic but still conservative.

Marriage Mix-Up

VENLO, Netherlands (WNS) A groom-to-be waited impatiently for his bride-to-be on the steps of one church while she and her parents waited for him at another church. As for the preacher, he was waiting for both of them at a third church in the neighboring town of Grenhitz. When they all finally got together, the noon wedding had become a midnight affair.

Experts Give Aid For Orderly Yule

Atlanta shoppers have a staff of experts at their elbow to help make the most of their time during holiday season sales. They can take advantage of the experts trial-and-error investigation on Christmas shopping.

With only two weeks left until Christmas, the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan Atlanta, Inc., today offered a dozen tips on how to buy gifts wisely and avoid mistakes in Christmas shopping. It all starts with a plan.

1. HAVE A PLAN: Plan your purchasing requirements at home BEFORE you venture into the market place. Make a list of your needs, with alternates, and where you expect to buy them. Include such necessary details as correct size, type or style, color, price range, brand preferences, etc., etc.

2. CHOOSE WISELY: Choose your gift items carefully with a view toward satisfying the needs and desires of recipients and their likes and dislikes, rather than your own. In buying expensive lifetime gifts, consult with the recipients' intimates, or with the recipient himself, or herself, so as to be sure your selection will meet with genuine approval.

3. SAVE TIME: Conserve your time and energy by planning your shopping trips efficiently so as to avoid aimless shopping. Place orders by telephone or by mail when feasible. In case of doubt as to whether a particular store carries a particular article, find out in advance by telephoning the store.

4. KNOW STORE POLICIES: Deal with firms of known reliability. Know what their policies are on guarantees, exchanges, refunds and deposits. Remember that when you buy an article it is YOURS and the merchant is not obliged to buy it back. If he does, remember that it is a matter of store policy not a "right" to which you are entitled. Remember, too, that absence of a sign saying "No Refunds" does not necessarily mean that the store gives refunds. The same goes for deposits.

5. EXAMINE AFTER DELIVERY: Examine the merchandise you buy after delivery. Make sure it is what you ordered and in good condition. If necessary, make exchanges, due to errors, breakage and defects BEFORE Christmas.

6. KEEP SALES SLIPS: Retain all sales slips, in the event exchanges or refunds are sought.

7. CHECK NAMES, ADDRESSES: Be sure that the store clerks who take your orders record your name and address, or the name and address of recipients of your packages correctly. On orders you send by mail, print your name and address legibly.

8. BE HOME FOR DELIVERIES: Cooperate with stores by carrying small packages. Be prepared to receive deliveries when made.

9. SHOP EARLY: Allow sufficient time for delivery before Christmas of all gift items, particularly those ordered by mail. Exchanges before Christmas, in the event of dissatisfaction on mail order purchases, may otherwise be impossible.

10. BE INFORMED ON TIME PURCHASES: If you purchase Christmas gifts on time, know what the carrying charges will be and what the total cost will be, as compared to the cash price. Learn what the legal rates are in your area on installment purchases so as to avoid exorbitant rates. Insist upon the itemization of all credit charges. Do not sign in blank. Get a completely filled-in copy of the contract. Read Before You Sign!

11. GUARD YOUR VALUABLES: Guard your pocketbook, charge plates and credit cards, and the packages you carry at all times. Protect yourself against the pickpockets and thieves who flourish at Christmas time.

12. BE FAIR: Treat merchants with the same golden rule fairness with which you expect to be treated. Don't ask merchants for cash refunds or exchanges on Christmas gifts which you receive. Don't abuse the return privilege where extended.—Betty Carrollton.

Tobe Says

The Gold Rush Is On!

From the Atlantic to the Pacific the gold rush is on in clothes for the hostess or for the guest—proving that all that glitters this season is golden.

This Midas touch works miracles — golden laces shimmer and shine but don't tarnish. Golden knits are wondrously glamorous, golden beads outglimmer all the other holiday glitter. I've even seen wicker handbags sprayed with gold for sunshine resorts. Gold kid belts or gold beaded or sequined belts are a day-into-evening fashion. And from this moment on, gold kid evening shoes, especially open ones, are an after-five "must."

This glitter of gold completely captures the holiday spirit. But the golden look is slated as a resort and a summer favorite, too.

As I See It Garry's Carol Proves Real Show-Stopper

By PAUL JONES

Garry Moore has two shows on television—one is an awful thing titled I've Got a Secret. The other is the Garry Moore Show, a wow.

There are many reasons why I've Got a Secret is not a big favorite of mine. Principally, it is silly.

Jones
vocal outbursts and comic accompaniment are, to use a little restraint, simply wonderful.

When Carol's mouth "drops into a vast circle," as someone so aptly described her facial gymnastics, and she throws herself into one of the devastating satires about types of people (she hardly ever does a satire about individuals) she becomes a one-woman show which is immensely entertaining.

Carol has helped to keep Garry's rating respectable this year.

When I learned that Candid Camera had found an address of its own on the CBS-TV network I feared that poor Garry would be foundering around in the Trendex cellar by now. Because, as everybody knows, Candid Camera was one of the best segments of the Moore show last year. Candid Camera has proved its popularity this season by nudging its way into the top programs on the air.

But Moore "rediscovered" Carol Burnett, and Carol, with her wonderful aptitude for comedy, has helped Garry to hang onto his great following.

MISS BURNETT, to be sure, is not the product of overnight success. She toiled in some of the little-known bistros of Manhattan and Los Angeles for several years before she did a controversial bit entitled "I Made a Fool of Myself Over John Foster Dulles," on the Jack Paar show one night.

Now this bit wasn't as noteworthy as was the water closet incident, but it did arouse comment, and, thanks to it, Carol Burnett was able to emerge from the upholstered sewer pipes of lower Manhattan, which some columnists call night clubs. Ed Sullivan, Buddy Hackett and Paul Winchell used her on their TV shows and she progressed in other ways.

I think more people have asked "who's she?" since she's been appearing on the Garry Moore show than ever before. The material she does, the time exposure she gets on Garry's 60-minute program and the verve with which she works before the TV cameras have established Carol as a girl who knows her way around.

During Tuesday's Garry Moore program she's going to do a skit which was worked over in the old burlesque and vaudeville era. She will impersonate someone getting drunk and drunker. I think her writers could have developed a skit around a theme which has a more comical connotation. But I'm sure that Miss Burnett will handle things with her usual deft touch. Later during the show she will impersonate a gun moll during the Wonderful Year segment. This possibly will be the highlight of the show.

GARRY HAS been fortunate in selecting his coworkers. Several years ago he developed an association with Durwood Kirby, the rangy comedian-announcer, and Durwood has become a great asset to the show.

In 1959 he hired Allen Funt, creator of Candid Camera, to join him on his 10-11 p.m. show on CBS-TV (Channel 5), and Candid Camera became a showstopper.

In Carol Burnett Garry has a performer who can stop a show, too. She has filled the void left by a Candid Camera—and that's saying a lot.

Scouting TV Tonight Deer Me! Santa's Herd Never Had It So Good

By THE TV SCOUT

7-7:30 (Channel 5)—With winter almost here, Expedition! appropriately turns to a snow-swept landscape, taking us along on an annual migratory trip with some Laplanders and their herds of reindeer.

"Survivors of the Ice Age" is the first of a two-week visit to the extreme north of Norway, and it's an unique port-of-call. You'll see a reindeer riding on a sled, something which should make Santa Claus turn over in his chimney. And there are plenty of other surprises in Alfred Hitchcock this wild and wintry country.

ington's first outing on Alfred Hitchcock Presents is a far cry from her December Bride career. Here she plays a little old lady who has had her purse snatched. While she's at the police station, looking through the mug shots, she comes upon a picture of a young man who looks like—well, that would be telling. Anyhow, it develops into a nice little story with a mild twist at the end. In his opening Hitchcock presents his answer to automation in bowling; it has some practical merit.

8:30-10 (Channel 5)—The Christmas presentation on The Show of the Month is a repeat (and a Merry Christmas to you, too) of "Harvey," first shown on Sept. 22, 1958. This is the bit of whimsy about Elwood P. Dowd and his pal, an invisible six-foot rabbit. Art Carney is Dowd, Marion Lorne is his bewildered sister and Larry Blyden is the doctor. Others in the good cast are Loring Smith, Elizabeth Montgomery and Charlotte Rae. Watch for a funny bit where Miss Lorne, after a harrowing siege at the hospital, enters a room only to trip over the nearly non-existent doorknob. Larry Blyden tells us he considers this the funniest bit of business he has ever seen an actress perform.

9-10 (Channel 11)—An interesting, well-acted offering on Stagecoach West with Beverly Garland as one of the most cold-blooded women west of Lady Macbeth. She's a calculating robber and killer who does it all for a man. She and her badly wounded pal hole up at the Beverly Garland stagecoach relay station during a blizzard. Luke Perry (Wayne Rogers) tumbles icily into this hornet's nest and battles the queen bee, if we aren't mixing our insect metaphors.

10-11 (Channel 2)—When you sink $200,000 into a pilot film and the prospective series isn't sold, the next thing to do is expose it as a special.

That's the story behind Tuesday's O'Connor's Ocean. John Payne stars as a sea-going lawyer who sails to Mexico aboard his yacht to search for the body of the presumed dead husband of his client. Filming took place last April off Newport Beach in California.

It's Gleason Again on TV In Comedy

Special to The Constitution
NEW YORK—Jackie Gleason, one of the entertainment world's most dynamic and versatile personalities, will return to television Friday, Jan. 20 as the star of a new, weekly comedy panel series on CBS-TV.

The new program, Gleason's first regular series since January 1959, will be presented on Fridays at 9:30-10 p.m.

Title of the show is You're in the Picture. As host and catalyst, Gleason presides over a panel of four guests. All four are seated behind a picture frame seven feet high and 10 feet wide. A picture, with portable cutouts, is "flown in" from offstage. The panelists put their faces through the picture holes, thus making them part of the picture which they cannot see but are asked to identify. The picture could be an historical incident, a reproduction of an art masterpiece, a cartoon or an original zany idea.

The guesses, naturally, are interspersed with quips and gags, in the inimitable Gleason style.

SEC Hooping It Up

Judging from the impressive manner in which Southeastern Conference teams dribbled out of the starting gate, the current race may be the finest ever in Bernie Moore's circuit.

Coaches are fond of saying that the league has more balance than ever before, and that appears an accurate statement this outing.

There are at least seven bona fide candidates for the crown. Kentucky, Auburn, Vanderbilt, Georgia Tech, Tennessee, Miss. State and Tulane figure to bat above .500. The odds are longer on Ole Miss, Florida, LSU and Georgia. Only Alabama appears to be out of it at this juncture.

Coach Adolph Rupp obviously does not have a typical Kentucky mount in the derby. The upset administered by Florida State proved that the field won't be overmatched against Kentucky.

On the other hand, you never count the Baron out. His outfit rebounded from the FSU shocker and whipped Notre Dame in Louisville.

The last time Kentucky was discounted at the outset, Rupp led his men to an NCAA crown. That was in 1958. Rupp was among the majority who didn't believe his team would amount to much.

He labeled them a bunch of "fiddlers," but they wound up in Carnegie Hall. I recall his bewildered reaction after Tech gave the Wildcats a lesson at Alex Hall.

"This team is teaching me things about the game that I never knew before, and I have been in this game a long time," the Baron fumed. "We are going to start all over."

Harry Lancaster, long-time aide and heir to the Kentucky throne, was more critical. A man remarked that Rupp, who had become somewhat excited during the contest, was likely to have another heart attack if he didn't relax at court-side.

"Not and leave me with this team," Lancaster solemnly quipped.

Eaves Ranks with Best of Cage Profs

Rupp laughed louder than anyone else. The Wildcats started all over and went all the way. Most conference observers agree that was his Mona Lisa as a coach. He may have to duplicate the feat to win this year.

Sticking with last season's champion may be the easiest method to handicap the Dixie Derby. Joel Eaves, the shrewd Auburn professor, has the knack of getting more out of his men than any coach except Rupp.

As long as Eaves is at the helm, Auburn will be a contender. The Plainsmen compiled a worksheet of 12-2 to nose out Tech in the SEC chase and lost only three of 22 games against all comers. If memory serves, Auburn has won 53 of its last 58 court bouts. Over a three-season span, Auburn has logged a 35-7 SEC chart, the best in the league.

Rolling into the Bluegrass tournament in Louisville Monday night, Georgia Tech was one of five unbeaten SEC brethren. The Engineers have the potential to become Whack Hyder's greatest team. They are shy of experience, however, which may prove extremely costly on the road. Tech definitely belongs in the upper bracket.

Red Lawson has a veteran team at Georgia which should rebound from a mediocre start. The Bulldogs positively have more talent than they displayed against Tech and South Carolina. This could be Georgia's first winning season in the conference in 21 years.

Tennessee figures to improve on its break-even 7-7 record last season. The Vols move into tournament play in Pittsburgh after winning three home-court tune-ups.

Babe Introduces a Talented Cast

Vanderbilt figures to be there or thereabouts at the wire. Bob Polk's troops have shot down Michigan, Florida State and SMU with amazing ease. They made their first road appearance Monday night against Alabama.

Babe McCarthy, who reminded one and all last season that they should see his Miss. State freshman team, is proudly displaying the youngsters as sophomores. State is rowing in the same boat with Georgia Tech. The Maroons have ability, but there's no substitute for experience.

Mississippi, which in recent seasons has been attempting to round up a basketball team the football team will be proud of, is achieving success. The Rebels gave Arkansas, one of the Southwest's best, a rough tussle before bowing Saturday night in Memphis.

A basketball power in the days of Bob Pettit, LSU is making progress on the long road back, but neighboring Tulane appears a cinch to reign as champion of Louisiana. In fact, Cliff Wells may have a worthy contender for the SEC title.

Athletic Director Ray Graves is determined to make Florida a power in all sports, and ambitious Norman Sloan appears to be the man needed to uncage the Gators.

Bear Bryant selected Hayden Riley to rehabilitate Alabama, but the Tide is at a low ebb material-wise.

Over-all, the conference probably is stronger than ever before. SEC teams licked 26 of 40 foes in outside tuneups, and now they're ready to start bopping each other.

Williams Regrets He Nixed Bribes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former lightweight king Ike Williams, a $46-a-week warehouseman who once made a million in the ring, said Monday he regrets spurning bribes to lose fights and the title he cherished.

Williams conceded before Senate investigators that his manager, Frank (Blinky) Palermo, had relayed offers of more than $180,000 to throw fights.

Unknown parties, he testified, were willing to pass $100,000 under the table to guarantee his defeat by Kid Gavilan in a nontitle bout at New York in January 1949.

"Actually," the 37-year-old Williams said, "I'm sorry, I didn't take it."

He lost the decision anyway, Williams explained, and the extra pot would have eased his tax problems.

In other testimony before the Senate Antimonopoly Subcommittee, Williams said Palermo told him later of a $50,000 proposition to get him to relinquish the title to Jimmy Carter at New York on May 25, 1951.

Williams said he vetoed that offer, too. Carter won the fight.

"I lost everything I had in my life when I lost the lightweight title," Williams said. But of the offer, he said "I should have taken it."

The Trenton, N.J., battler who held one or another version of the championship from 1945 until the 1951 Carter match, said that because of a shoulder injury he felt he would lose to Art Aragon of Los Angeles in a later bout, even if he did beat Carter.

Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., chairman of the subcommittee seeking to purge boxing of underworld taint, asked if at this time Williams did not feel better about it all.

"I do not, Senator," Williams replied. "I do not."

He declared the title had meant

Italians Launch New Era

PERTH, Australia (AP)—A new era in tennis dawned Tuesday with Italy, surprise conqueror of the United States, headed for Sydney as the first European nation to crash the Davis Cup challenge round in 24 years.

The tennis world was in a state of shock after the sensational comeback of Italy's Nicola Pietrangeli and Orlando Sirola, who after dropping the first two matches, rallied for a 3-2 triumph in the interzone finals over America's heavily favored stars Monday.

It marks the first time in 60 years of Davis Cup competition that Italy has gained a showdown round of the sport's World Series. And it is the first shutout for the Americans since 1936.

Pietrangeli, who had his heart cut out in a 4-hour marathon loss to Barry MacKay in the opening round, redeemed himself with a clever fighting exhibition which turned back Earl (Butch) Buchholz.

Rigney Is Angels' Manager

Ex-Giant Gets 1-Year Pact

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Bill Rigney stepped in Monday as field manager of the new Los Angeles Angels of the American Baseball League and his first remarks were:

"I'm ready for work and they tell me there are things to do around here."

Rigney's humorous crack followed the formal announcement of a one-year contract by general manager Fred Haney at a news conference here which jammed the sixth-floor office space at Wrigley Field, home of the new franchise.

The announcement was not really a surprise. The ex-manager of the San Francisco Giants had been prominently mentioned the past week.

Haney disclosed that the management, including president Bob Reynolds and board chairman Gene Autry, had considered 10 or 12 possibilities.

"We are delighted to get a man of Rigney's experience and enthusiasm," Haney declared.

Rigney was summarily dismissed by owner Horace Stoneham of the Giants last June. The club was in second place and eventually wound up fifth.

Rigney's major league managing career, after a long tour of duty as an active player, began with the then New York Giants in 1956.

MAJOR TRADES DELAY FORCED BY BLIZZARD

BOSTON (AP)—A blustery blizzard Monday forced postponement of the selection of players by the new Los Angeles and Washington teams in the American League and brought about an extension of the inter-league trading deadline.

Officials of the two new clubs were scheduled to meet with American League president Joe Cronin Tuesday morning to pick their players from a pool made available from existing American League teams.

But the wind-driven snowstorm canceled all air travel in and out of Boston. Los Angeles officials telephoned Cronin they wouldn't be able to make it. The meeting was postponed one day, until 10 a.m. (EST) Wednesday.

A little later, the league received permission from baseball commissioner Ford Frick and the National League to extend the inter-league trading deadline until midnight Friday. The original deadline was midnight Thursday.

Cardinals Shackle Kaiser; Tech Meets Utah State

By LARRY BOECK
Courier-Journal Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE—The Engineers of Georgia Tech got into the construction business too late here Monday night.

Tech got little early constructive work done as they trailed by 22 near the end of the first half. But the Engineers got busy in the second half and once pulled within eight points before bowing, 74-65, to rangy Louisville in the first game of the Blue Grass tournament.

Approximately 8,000 were on hand.

In the second game Western Kentucky outthudded Utah State, 86-72, to join Louisville in the finals. Georgia Tech meets Utah State in a consolation before the championship game.

Western had too much shooting strength for the Aggies, who were unable to stop Bobby Rascoe, Hilltoppers' high scoring guard and high man with 22.

Georgia Tech resorted to a pressing zone defense in the second half to finally make a half game of it, and to lose by the seven to nine points they were made underdogs by the wagering set here.

Georgia Tech was down 41-22 at the half, and seemingly was headed for a humiliating rout. During this agonizing span for the Engineers, they sank just 18.7 per cent of their shots, while hot Louisville fired home 50 per cent to their field-goal attempts.

Louisville's big front line, also outbounded Tech, 30-15, and leading a tight Cardinal defense was guard Jerry Armstrong, who held all-American Roger Kaiser to five points—all on free throws—in the first half.

Battling Tech fought back valiantly in outplaying Louisville the second half, and escaping a carnage.

Russell Sparks 4th Vandy Win

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—An improved Alabama basketball team put on a strong first-half show against Vanderbilt Monday night but stalled in the second half and bowed to the visitors, 77-61.

The Crimson Tide, winless in four outings this season, battled to a 41-38 half-time lead but then began dropping behind. Vanderbilt has won all four of its games this season.

Vandy's John Russell and Bama's Henry Hoskins tied for scoring honors with 22 points each. But while Vandy was aided by 19 points from Bobby Bland and 13 from Bill Depp, Hoskins was the only Tidesman to hit the double figures.

Greenies Go into Overtime
After Cloak Ties Up Game

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Tulane sank two free throws after the regulation time ran out Monday night to tie the score and then went on to down Rice, 84-83, in overtime for the Green Wave's fifth straight victory.

With one second remaining in the game, Tulane trailed, 79-77. Dale Cloak went up for a jump shot and was fouled by Roger McQuary. No time remained on the clock when Cloak converted the foul to give Tulane a tie.

After 1:20 of the overtime, Jack Ardon put Tulane in the lead to stay. Ardon, finally showing his flashy form of last season, scored 27 points to lead all scorers. Ole Shipley was high for Rice with 19 points.

Tulane outrebounded Rice, 57-44, and counted on 23 of 67 shots from the field for a 34.3 percent. Rice made good on 28 of 70 for 40 percent.

LSU Nips Texas

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Louisiana State took an early lead and edged the fast finishing Texas Longhorns 62-59 in an intercollegiate basketball game here Monday night.

Ellis Cooper and George Nattin paced the Tigers to their second victory of the season. Cooper was high scorer with 20 points, including nine straight free throws in the second half and 12 of 13 over-all. Nattin scored 15 points.

It was learned later that he had rebroken the arm.

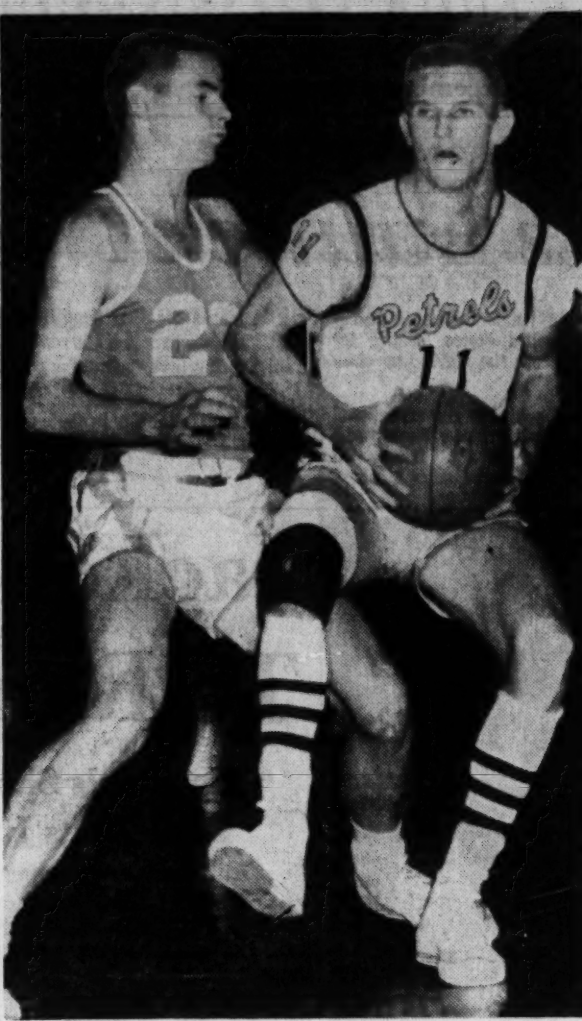

Wake Forest Loses Soph Bob Woollard

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Bob Woollard, 6-10 sophomore Wake Forest College basketball player, has rebroken his lower left arm and will be lost to the team for three or four weeks.

Woollard, whose home is in Bloomfield, N.J., first broke the arm in mid October.

He reinjured it Saturday night in the game against Penn State at Charlotte. During a scramble for the ball he brought his arm down heavily on the head of a Penn State player, drawing a personal foul for his trouble.

It was learned later that he had rebroken the arm.

BIG EIGHT CHANGED RULES TO TRAP KU, CLAIMS DEAN

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—The Big Eight Conference changed its rules of procedure in order to revoke eligibility of Bert Coan, Kansas halfback, Dean Laurence Woodruff said Monday.

Woodruff was the Kansas representative at the Big Eight faculty committee meeting in Kansas City last Thursday when the committee took the 1960 football championship away from Kansas and gave it to Missouri.

The committee declared Coan ineligible and forced Kansas to forfeit its victories over Colorado and Missouri.

"The vote was 5 to 3 to find Kansas in violation of conference rules," Woodruff said. "But in all matters of new regulations and rule changes, conference rules state that the vote must be by a 6-to-2 majority. In this matter, however, a motion was passed to make a simple majority the only requirement."

"Fought against it, but lost," Woodruff said he and Chancellor W. Clarke

Wescoe would issue a "white paper" this week, giving Kansas' position in the controversy.

A group of Kansas City lawyers has proposed a lawsuit on Coan's behalf.

The penalty arose from a trip Coan made in August 1958 to the All-Star game in Chicago with Kenneth (Bud) Adams, K. U. alumnus and head of the Houston Oilers professional football team. At that time Coan was expected to attend Texas Christian University, but later he came to Kansas.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association placed Kansas on probation for a year, beginning Oct. 26, 1960, because of the trip. The Big Eight committee ruled the Chicago trip was in violation of its rules against excessive entertainment of a prospective athlete.

Woodruff said Nebraska and Missouri brought up the question of Coan's eligibility shortly before Kansas defeated Nebraska Nov. 5.

"Our whole contention," Woodruff continued, "was that at the time of the ill-fated trip, Coan was not a prospective KU student."

hard-working Tech had whittled the Louisville lead down to 12, at 56-44.

Louisville, which had led by a huge 22 points at 33-11 with 5:40 left in the first half, began to experience some uneasy moments when Kaiser, operating on the backcourt press and zone defense and harassing Louisville, stole the ball and drove in for a crisp shot to make it 58-50.

But the Red Birds rebuilt a 14-point margin at 65-51 with 4:08 to go. Still Tech refused the invitation to fold and kept fighting away.

When it was over, Louisville had won its sixth game in a row against no defeats. And to beat this scrapping Tech, had to sink 51.9 per cent of its shots from the field. Tech ended firing 28.1 per cent, and, considering the disparity in percentages, turned in an over-all commendable effort.

Kaiser didn't have a good night, as Armstrong and others assigned to guard him were zealous in their work. Getting few good shots, and missing some of the good ones he did get, Kaiser sank just 4 of 16 field goal attempts. But he caused his defenders to foul him frequently, and so he managed 10 of 12 from the free throw line.

Louisville had too much height, too much experience and too much talent for the young Engineers. Getting behind the Georgia Tech defense the first half, and dominating the offensive board, Louisville was led by Bud Olsen, with 23 points, and John Turner, with 21.

Georgia Tech's undoing came during a most frigid siege in the first half after having battled on Louisville for even terms at 9-9 with 15:44 to go. From then until 5:28 was left in the first half, Tech didn't get a field goal and scored only two points on free throws as speedy, hot-shooting Louisville dashed off to a 33-11 lead. That would have completely done in most teams, but, somehow, Tech managed to outscore Louisville the rest of the way 54-41.

play. Mitchell cranked up and Oglethorpe ran the score to 31-17 at halftime as 300 partisans, a jazz band and a corps of pretty cheerleaders hooped it up.

The Petrels showed more offensive coherence in the second half and methodically plowed under the Berry boys. There was never a question of their defensive determination as Berry, which had difficulty getting a clear shot, will testify.

Oglethorpe hit 44.8 per cent of its shots from the floor. Berry managed 30.2.

An amusing incident occurred in the second half when one of the players lost a contact lens. Members of both teams and officials crawled around the court trying to locate the expensive optical aid.

Forward Bobby Nance, anchor man on Pinholster's shuffle, scored 11 and second unit center John Kuiken, a 220-pounder, chipped in nine and performed manfully under the boards.

Forwards Dorsey Watson and Russell Dickey scored over half of Berry's points, Dickey contributing 10 and Watson nine to lead the valiant Rome school's struggle.

The first half was surprisingly off-target, and the Petrels led by only 11-7 after 11 minutes of

It's Last Call for Two Before Kentucky Visits

By PAUL ATKINSON

It's last local call for Sylvan and Smyrna High schools Tuesday night before their inter-sectional basketball weekend with Kentucky powers, Newport and Ashland.

Victories by Sylvan over George and Smyrna over Sprayberry would set up a battle of unbeaten Friday night at Sylvan and Oglethorpe University field houses. For latest report had both Newport and Ashland undefeated in Kentucky.

Sylvan has swept to eight straight wins, and averaged 70 points in doing so. Smyrna has clicked off seven straight, and is averaging in the mid-60s.

The George-at-Sylvan and Sprayberry-at-Smyrna games will hold considerable interest, but there are others on a full docket that are also important. Among these are the Southwest-Murphy, Fulton-North Fulton, Decatur-Avoncote, and Griffin-Osborne games at Murphy, North Fulton, Avondale and Osborn gyms.

Ossie Wadewitz's defending AAA champions have hardly been tested. Murphy yielded only by 13 points, 65-52. Otherwise, games haven't been particularly close. In order, it was Sylvan 72, Grady 48; 73-41 over Bass, 65-52 over Murphy, 75-55 over Roosevelt, 65-30 over East Atlanta, 75-36 over Dykes and 74-57 over Northside. North Fulton was conquered, 29-17, in a partial game, cut short by lighting defects.

Chief scorer for Sylvan has been 6-6 Lee DeFore. The burly 200-pound center has averaged 20 points per game and 13 rebounds. Guard Tommy Roberts, forwards Virlyn Gaynes and Bob Tuggle and guard Terry Stephens have hit 12, 10, 10 and 9 points per game. Subs Ronnie Dodson and Charles Robinson have averaged four points per outing, and it was this pair, plus Bart Hickman, who was credited by Wadewitz with saving the Northside game after three starters fouled out.

Sylvan's first foe in the double-header setup will be Newport, which has fashioned a gaudy 266-84 in 12 seasons under head coach Stan Arzen.

Individual standouts for Arzen's squad are center Tom Owens a lanky 6-5 fellow who can palm the basketball in either hand, and guard Larry Sprinkle, the 5-11 captain of the team. Sprinkle is a fine outside shooter, and regarded by Arzen as a "college prospect."

There are five other lettermen off last season's roster. These are forward Leroy Turner (6-2), center Roland Turner (6-2) and

Layoff Effects Harass Florida

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)—When Florida's football team Monday got down to the serious business of practicing for its Gator Bowl game against Baylor, the effects of a layoff since season's end were apparent.

Timing was off and fumbles were frequent in a workout on offense. Defensively the players looked better in brisk sunny weather. This was the first workout in pads since the season ended Nov. 26. Four practice sessions last week concentrated on running and calisthenics.

The squad is at full strength. Three key players who missed late-season games with injuries—halfbacks Doug Partin and Dick Skelly and end Tom Smith—are running at full speed.

Officials for Game

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Officials of the Baylor-Florida Gator Bowl football game Dec. 31 were announced Monday.

Burns McKinney of Hardin-Simmons will be referee; W. W. Luttrell of Tennessee, umpire; Maurice Baumgarten of Texas, head linesman; Ewell Pope of Georgia Tech, field judge; William C. Gibson of Georgia Tech, back judge, and Morris Harrison of Georgia Tech, clock operator.

GOALBY'S CADDY MOST HAPPY MAN AT GABLES

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Happiest man to emerge from the $20,000 Coral Gables golf tournament wasn't Bob Goalby, the winner, but Walter Montgomery from Baton Rouge, La.

Montgomery, a tall Negro in his middle 20s, caddied for Goalby and made a near-tragic blunder on the 18th green that could have cost Goalby top money of $2,800.

Goalby hit the green with his second shot and the ball rolled two feet over onto the apron. Montgomery, stepping backwards, hit the ball with his heel and turned it over.

Goalby called the penalty on himself while Walter moaned, twisted his hands and appeared ready to burst into tears.

Goalby walked over to his caddy, patted him on the back, smiled and said, "Forget it, pardner."

But Walter was a picture of misery, mournfully shaking his head until Goalby holed out in two for a bogey five and victory. Then the caddy leaped with joy.

"Any other pro would have chased me off the course," Walter said in reliving his emotions. "But that's the kind of great personality he is. Why I wanted to carry for him," he said.

Montgomery, who has been a caddy for 10 years and never cost anybody a stroke, said he made Goalby's acquaintance three years ago in Baton Rouge, where he carried for him in a tournament.

"This is my first year to follow the pro circuit as caddy and when I saw Bob at Palm Beach a week ago—the first time I had seen him since back in Baton Rouge—I asked if I could caddy for him here," Walter said.

Last Half Letdown Worrying Texas

Two of Three Losses Came in Late Going

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Texas, stung by evidence that it is a wilting violet in the second half, takes on aggressive Alabama in Houston Saturday in the second annual Bluebonnet Bowl.

A nationwide television audience Thanksgiving Day witnessed an example of how the Longhorns this season stormed off to good starts but are driven on the ropes by the final gun. Texas grabbed a 21-0 lead over Texas A. & M., then clung on for a 21-14 decision.

Texas opponents have stacked up 73 per cent of their total scoring in the last two quarters while the Longhorns have scored only 32 per cent. Texas scraped together only a field goal and a touchdown in the second half of its last five games.

But the first half surge was good enough to send the Steers to a tie for second place in the Southwest Conference and seven victories in 10 games.

Two of these losses were one point affairs in which Nebraska and Arkansas came from behind in the second half.

"I'll guarantee you that what those folks at Alabama are playing is a bunch of boys who want to," assistant coach Mike Campbell of Texas put it.

"They're fanatical in their effort. They're the most aggressive team I've ever seen. I'll tell you how they play: All 11 men play like they had been told they'd get their heads chopped off after the game if they didn't go all out on every play."

Alabama coach Paul Bryant is no stranger to Texas and football fans in this state. He brought A. & M. from rags to riches and coached A. & M. to its only victory over Texas in history at Memorial Stadium here.

The Bluebonnet Game is the second post season battle between 'Bama and Texas.

everything to him and he did not want to let down friends whom he thought were loyal.

"As things went on and got tougher, I found out otherwise," he said.

Williams, now 20 pounds over his 135-pound fighting weight, was the ex-champ subcommittee counsel John G. Bonomi refused to identify in advance lest the witness be harmed.

The Georgia-born Negro, father of two children, takes home $92.97 every two weeks from his job with the New Jersey Conservation agency.

In addition to the Gavilan and Carter fights, Williams said, Palermo had reported offers of $30,000 to lose to Freddie Dawson at Philadelphia in 1949 and "a large sum of money" to take a dive against Juste Fontaine in 1947. Williams won both of those matches.

Never did Palermo, a Philadelphia racket figure, suggest he accept the bribes, Williams said.

Williams said he still hasn't seen one cent of purses totalling $65,000 for bouts with Jesse Flores and Beau Jack in 1948 or of about $800 he put up for training expenses before fighting Gil Turner in 1951.

FIELD AND STREAMS PREACH STRONG SERMONS

By CHARLES ELLIOTT
Constitution Outdoor Columnist

Jim Vessey and I had our feet propped up, talking about various aspects of the outdoors. Jim is my kind of a fellow. Not because he adequately fills a pair of very large boots as regional forester of the Southern states, with some 10-million acres of national forests from Virginia to Texas, though his outdoor background in many parts of the nation more than qualifies him for the tremendous responsibilities of his job. One of the things I like about Jim Vessey is his outdoor philosophy, acquired through his intimacy with back-of-beyond country, and how he applies it in his business as well as his personal affairs.

"From your hunting and fishing experiences," he said, "you learn a lot about living. Big woods and distant mountains teach a guy such fundamental qualities as patience and ingenuity and complete honesty in the appraisal of any situation. On the trails—and especially where there are no trails—he must have those qualities to survive."

Charles Elliott

He didn't say so, but I'm sure it was mutually understood that anyone must develop those traits WHEREVER in this uncertain world he happens to land. They are the trademark of his caliber.

We talked about specific lessons and decided that fishing teaches a fellow even more than he realizes. You learn, for instance, that to be a successful angler you must first condition yourself to patience. You operate on the basis that you won't make a smacking success on every cast. Indispensable also is a certain measure of skill—which you get only through experience—and it doesn't take long to realize that failure is not disastrous, but only a lesson, though sometimes not an easy one. Learn to live by the unwritten fishing rules, and it adds grace and charm to your daily existence.

I was all fired up with the idea and we carried it a step further. Any veteran Waltonite knows that after he has hooked an underwater fighter it's not a question of "the bigger the fish, the tighter the line." With something extraordinarily large you often have to give more line at first than you take before you may be assured of success.

Jim pointed out that one of the most valuable sermons any fellow might get in keeping a steady head could be learned from grouse hunting. He chuckled. "All of the grouse I ever brought home for the table were those that panicked and burst out of cover before my gun. I'm sure I walked over many others that sat tight. And as far as I know they're still there—and uncooked."

Have you ever tried to pit your woodsmanship against a bearded wild gobbler? The perceptions you'll accumulate in this type of hunting are infinite. More than any of the others, though, will be your training in the ability to absorb disappointment and failure. Through them you acquire a certain philosophy, based on the fact that although the actual kill does make a difference, it is not nearly so important as being there to match your wilderness wits with a wild citizen who depends solely on his own capacities for survival. And you eventually learn not to be sorely hurt by this failure either—for you know there'll always be another day and another opportunity.

There are some times and some occasions when I do not see eye to eye with a forester, but this certainly was not one of them. That session with Jim Vessey gave me a brand-new angle of appreciation for the outdoors.

Italians Send U.S. Cuppers To Sidelines in Shocker

holz of St. Louis 6-1, 6-2, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

Sirola, a placid-smiling giant from Bologna, then put the crusher on MacKay, America's top ace, with a demonstration of awesome serving power 9-7, 6-3, 8-6.

Pietrangeli's triumph over Buchholz came as no surprise since the agile Roman is rated one of the world's best amateurs. But it was almost beyond belief that Sirola, who never has won a major title, could stand up in a heavy-weight slugging match with the hardhitting MacKay from Dayton, Ohio.

Even after Pietrangeli had leveled the series at two matches each, confidence beat strong in the American camp.

"Barry is our ace in the hole," said Captain David Freed.

But American hopes wilted as the 6-7 Sirola, playing as calmly and coolly as if it were a Sunday picnic, hammered MacKay's skin on the big scoreboard.

The giant Italian served with such effectiveness that he never lost a delivery, and he permitted MacKay only nine points on service in the last two sets.

In the second set, MacKay was able to squeeze out only two points against Sirola's booming cannon shots.

In the third, he got a total of seven, but never was close to breaking.

The match ended on a bizarre note as MacKay sent two shots into the net for a double fault, setting off a wild demonstration by the Italians and a large number of supporters in the gallery.

Pietrangeli burst into tears. Tears also flowed in the American dressing room, where young Buchholz took the defeat hardest.

"How did it happen? How did it happen?" he asked between sobs. "I could have won. If I hadn't hit two foolish shots I could have won."

Buchholz said he played too loosely on two shots in the early stages of the fifth set against Pietrangeli.

Freed was downcast and disappointed, but he offered no excuses. "They were just to good," he said. "Particularly Sirola. No one could have stood up to such inspired tennis." The U.S. captain then turned to his players and said, "Let's go fellows. Let's take it like men."

The Americans had been sharply criticized in Australian newspapers for what was called unsportsmanlike conduct. This mainly involved throwing rackets and kicking tennis balls after losing tough points.

REPORT FROM OUTDOORS

Alas---the Sport Had Left For These Poor Fishermen

By TOM STODDARD

Fishermen, a hardy, patient lot of people, rarely complain too vociferously when the fishing is poor. They like to get out in the open air, with mother nature, they will tell you. Catching fish is secondary.

But every fisherman holds in his mind the hope of the fabled day of the strike on every cast, the truckload of fish, the constant action of a perfect fishing day.

What keeps their quiet hopes alive, most likely, is stories such as the following.

It's about four Newnan men, Sanford Pike, Will Stallings, John Wilkerson and Glover Sewell, who on a two-day fishing trip in Suwanee, Fla., boated 1,296 pounds of redfish.

Pike, who certainly will want to go back again after such success on his first try for the bull reds in Florida, will have to wait for a while at least, until his hands get back in condition.

"Our hands were cut to ribbons," he said. "John Wilkerson's reeling hand swelled up about twice as big as it should be."

"From the time we started Sunday morning (when most of the fish were caught) I didn't smoke a cigarette or eat a thing until 4:15. We just plain gave out, then."

Then Pike related something, which though surely true, must be proved to fishermen before they will believe it.

"It got right monotonous after a while," he said. "We gave out a couple of times during the day, and would rest for 15 or 20 minutes."

"Just anywhere you threw, you caught a fish. The only sport was in reeling them in, not in hooking them. One of us caught one from under the boat, on a bare hook after he had lost one."

Pike, who luckily is the proprietor of a trucking firm, dispatched one of his pickups from Newnan to pick up the fish, which

ICY ACE SIROLA PLAYED IT COOL

PERTH, Australia (AP)—Orlando Sirola, who beat America's Barry MacKay in the climactic fifth match which sent Italy into the Davis Cup challenge round, said he never had been "cooler or more relaxed."

"Never once did I feel any pressure. I never once got tense or excited," the giant ace from Bologna said.

"Barry knew he had to beat me. All the pressure was on him. That gave me a big psychological advantage."

Sirola never once lost a service and he played a brilliant all-around game in beating MacKay in straight sets 9-7, 6-3, 8-6.

The 6-7 Italian, who became a tremendous favorite with the gallery, said it was the doubles victory Sunday which ignited the fire under the Italian team and set them off for one of the biggest surprises in tennis history.

"When we won the doubles, we realized that the Americans could be beaten on grass."

"So we went out and tried to prove we could do it."

This was the fifth interzone final for Nicola Pietrangeli and Sirola, who have been playing as a team for eight years. All previous interzone efforts ended in quick defeat.

Both have shown themselves to be dedicated to the job since arriving in Australia. They whipped themselves into peak condition under the careful guidance of Jaroslav Drobný, the former Wimbledon champion who served as coach and manager.

filled 11 boxes, and completely covered the back of the truck up to the sides.

This makes one thing for certain. Newnan friends of Pike and his cohorts not have to buy any fish for quite a long while.

ELSEWHERE OUTDOORS—R. Hardy of College Park had a rather unorthodox pet for a while last week, after wounding and capturing a large hawk. Hardy came across the hawk while driving his car on a dirt road near Fayetteville, stopped, and brought it down with his 16-gauge shotgun. The bird lived for three days afterward, but finally died. Which solved Hardy's problem of what to do with a pet hawk, anyway.

Little Loss of Wildlife Seen in 'Treated' Areas

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

The State Department of Agriculture declared Monday that wildlife specialists surveying areas treated for fire ants in Georgia "have not found any significant loss of wildlife."

The department statement was made in reply to a statement contained in an article published in the Sunday Journal-Constitution saying the eradication program "has killed everything except the fire ant."

"There has been a great deal of scare material put out in printed form but to date no one claiming heavy wildlife losses has presented any concrete evidence of such losses," the statement said.

"Fire ant eradication measures in Georgia are being carried out under a carefully planned program designed specifically to prevent wildlife and other animal losses."

"In addition, the U.S. Public Health Service has studied the treatment program as it is being carried out in this state and approved the program as not being dangerous to public health."

At the same time, Agriculture Commissioner Phil Campbell, in an editorial appearing in the Market Bulletin, urged farmers and sportsmen to "join hands in a united effort to protect and improve our wildlife populations."

Campbell specifically pointed to the work of the Georgia Sportsmen's Federation in conserving resources and said it "offers the nucleus around which such a cooperative effort on behalf of both city sportsmen and farmers can be built."

He recommended that farmers, as well as other sportsmen, support the federation and its efforts.

Campbell emphasized that farmers own most of the land on which our wildlife is found "and as stewards of this land they are guardians of our wildlife." This means the farmer "has an ever greater responsibility to discharge," Campbell said.

The commissioner called the problem of preserving wildlife "a major problem in the face of a rapidly expanding population."

in a man's life...

How the unique advantages of life insurance help safeguard some of life's greatest rewards... bringing peace of mind at the stroke of a pen

- THE DAY HE MARRIES. With life insurance, a man can immediately guarantee his family an amount of money far greater than he could possibly save in many years.
- THE DAY HE BECOMES A FATHER. By using life insurance to help provide for college expenses, he can make sure his children can have a good education.
- THE DAY HE MOVES INTO HIS OWN HOME. His home can be more secure when he owns life

- insurance. He can make certain his family will not be left with an unpaid mortgage.
- THE DAY HE GETS THE JOB OF HIS CHOICE. With life insurance, he can make business decisions and seek new opportunity more confidently—for he knows in advance exactly how much money will be available at any given time.
- THE DAY HE CAN AFFORD TO RETIRE. His later years will be happier when he plans his life insurance to guarantee a steady income for him and his wife which will last for both their lifetimes.

The life insurance you need depends upon your own family situation and way of life. You will also want to take into account changing conditions and circumstances. Helping you resolve these problems is part of the service your life insurance agent has to offer.
